You disagree with the mercury spewed by coal power plants, Telemundoh?

You probably believed Larry Craig when he said he wasn't gay too.

The mercury spewed by coal power plants isn't in my living room carpet.
Give a little thought toward concentration and volume and how much you end up in coming in contact with it from power plants or by bringing it into your house if the bulb breaks.

> You probably believed Larry Craig when he said he wasn't gay too.

Maybe you can explain what that guy has to do with mercury.

It's a form of discrimination against poor people. Rich girls used to go to Europe to "deal" with their unwanted pregnancies; poor women have much fewer options.

Good. The local guys here bought back their station from Clear Channel for millions less than they sold it for, less than 10 years ago. For some reason Clear Channel can't make money, even with clusters and hubs, but Carl Goldman can, using live operators. Localism; it's not just for breakfast anymore.

I'm Canadian now? My BC says otherwise, Telemundoh!

I have both a long form one, and one like Obama posted, in case you're in doubt. Both say I am a natural born US citizen, BTW. I have been to Windsor twice though, and that's the extent of my international travels.

LOL, you're so amazingly easy to get all pissed off.

You seem like an 8 year old, emotionally, sometimes. Other times, you seem like a 12 year old.

And what does abortion have to do with your Obama BC kooktardery? Or your views on universal health care?

I don't follow kooktardical logic, so you'll need to explain it to me.

Who cares if you watch TV or not? You probably don't because you might laugh and crack your face. You apparently know who Shalit is, though.
How is that, if you don't watch TV? Most search engines are run by liberals, so I'm sure you wouldn't stoop to using one of those, would you?

But, since that crap from physics, and is 300 years old, it's also why the their Chemists, and the the real engineers work on Thermo-Electric Cooling,
Microwave Cooling, C++, Distributed Processing, post Wal-Mart
Batteries,
Optical Computers, Light Sticks, DVD-rom, CD-rw, USB, HDTV
debugging,
On-Line Banking, On-Line Shopping, On-Line Publishing, Holography, Autonomous Vehicles, Digital-Terrain Mapping, and GPS for the entropy cranks anyway.

I received this email today!

Dear All

Many thanks for your letters which were all received. I read them all and it was good to know that so many of you were out there listening and from all around the world.

However, I am very pleased to say that all the QSL cards for 2008 have been done and have left the island on the 8 May 2009. From here they went to Ascension Island and then to the United Kingdom.

Thanks to those of you in the United Kingdom and Ireland who have e-mail to say you have received yours.

May I take this opportunity to thank you once again and to say keep it tuned to Radio St Helena on shortwave 11092.5 USB coming soon!!!

With regards

Gary

Drive that Car; and Listen to the AM & FM Radio in that Car.

- Here ya go: the answer is no.

See that was easy.

- Torture does not work.

That is debatable depending on the information being sought.

- People being tortured make up all sorts
- of bullshit to get the suffering to stop.

That is why having a foundation of information and fact prior to any Interrogation; including Torture; is important.

- What do you say, old man?
- Are you willing to be waterboarded 10-15 times?

Not even reversable computing gets you to 100% efficiency let alone beyond it. Maxwell's Deamons must haunt your brain.
There's no such thing as a free lunch.

Many years ago Eric Drexler came up with the coinage
"nanotechnology". In his book he talked about population growth and standard of living. While we have made some inroads into the third dimension for the most part humans live on the surface of the world. Our population is a primarily a function of the volume of space we inhabit and the quality of that space to support our life. We're reaching the limits of this world but we are also learning how to move beyond this world. As some point the quality of the space we enhabit will, while still being clumped, average to a point where population grow with mostly be a function of the space we enhabit. We ehnabit the sphere of space, making population of growth a cube function but we expand into new territory at the surface, making expansion a square function.

Even hearing this, one of the ladies at nanocon 1 saw the benefit of eternal life through nanotechnology was to mother more and more children.

For all of the benefits of technology, unless we change
the psyche of those who would be fruitful and multiply we will see a contraction of our standard of living.

One of the Professors I talked to at Nanocon 1 addressed the issue by saying some humans will have to be left behind and that at Cambridge he stepped over the bums sleeping in the entrances to the buildings and panhandling when awake.

What good is all the technology if when I see my family nake but I cannot clothe them and hungry but I cannot feed them. Should it matter to me that their (and mine) hell is of their own making? I will not abandon my family.
There's no such thing as a free lunch.

3645. SPECIAL: The 13 people who made torture possible

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave
Date: 2009-05-18 14:00:30 UTC
From: dave <dave@dave.dave>

13 Is George "Bunnypants" Bush

"Bush's inaction in torture is as important as his actions. Bush failed to fulfill legal obligations to notify Congress of the torture program. A Senate Intelligence timeline on the torture program makes clear that Congress was not briefed on the techniques used in the torture program until after Abu Zubaydah had already been waterboarded. And in a 2003 letter, then House Intelligence ranking member Jane Harman shows that she had not yet seen evidence that Bush had signed off on this policy. This suggests President Bush did not provide the legally required notice to Congress, violating National Security Decisions Directive-286. What Bush did not say is as legally important as what he did say.

Yet, ultimately, Bush and whatever approval he gave the program is at the center of the administration's embrace of torture. Condoleezza Rice recently said, "By definition, if it was authorized by the president, it did not violate our obligations in the Convention Against Torture." While Rice has tried to reframe her statement, it uses the same logic used by John Yoo and David Addington to justify the program, the shocking claim that international and domestic laws cannot bind the president in times of war. Bush's close allies still insist if he authorized it, it couldn't be torture."

Again, HD radio should have the advantage of establishing itself first. The poor economy will delay the less developed competitors. Of course, the real advantage goes to a product that actually fills a need.

HD would have an economic problem even without the recession. HD is too proprietary -- too burdened down with ibiquity's fees. People expect radios to be cheap.

The recession might delay even cheaper WiMax applications for a year or two. I doubt ibiquity can take advantage of the opportunity.

People will be listening in quieter environments because of HD 1?

Judging from the volume of the posts, the culture in this forum finds AM DX about 10 times as interesting as FM DX.

And isn't that with ibiquity's second hardwired HD codec? How could that get past ibiquity's folk from Lucent?

Maybe, after the AM band goes sufficiently quiet, digital can be done the right way, instead of with ibiquity's half-assed kluge.

Better yet, give the band back to the radio amateurs.

The poll also showed that a majority of Americans, while calling themselves pro-lifers, were opposed to denying women the ability to seek a legal abortion.

No one favors abortions. Some of us do, however, believe that the alternative to legal abortion is backroom abortions with hangers.

Not quite. You ignore the other scumbags on the list.

MWB ? legal abortion ?

So-called Partial Birth Abortion Ain't Abortion
It is the Partial Birth Killing {Murder} of the Live-Born {Living} Infants [.]

Go back to the original US Supreme Court Decision on Abortion and the Rules for Each of the Three Trimesters of a Pregnancy :
0~3 Months
4~6 Months
7~9 Months

Nowhere Does It Address the Murderous Infanticide Process that is now called Partial Birth Abortion.

Partial Birth Abortion -aka- ObamaCide©

- No one favors abortions.

MWB - wrong, Wrong. WRONG !
Some/Many Liberal Elitist Eugenics types are strong proponents of the Poor, and especially Minorities, getting Abortions; and the numbers bear that out with Blacks and Hispanics getting significantly higher numbers of Abortions than Whites {Abortions per 1000 Women}.

BounceOLOGY uh, uh...what?

The challenges facing mid-size and smaller companies right now are daunting. Demands on executive time, the need for innovative project management, and the imperative of flawless execution with real results all combine to put unprecedented pressure to move fast and exceed expectations. That is why Diane Warren today announced the launch of Obama's executive grasp includes our entire lives

In December 2007, Sen. Barack Obama’s reassurances to the Boston Globe suggested that he understood constitutional limits on executive and government power. He knew that there were things the “president does not have power under the Constitution” to do, including unilaterally authorizing military action and surveilling citizens without warrants. He said he would “reject the Bush administration’s claim that the president has plenary authority under the Constitution to detain U.S. citizens without charges as unlawful enemy combatants.”

That thoughtful skeptic of executive power now sits in the Oval Office. Isolating random bits of his presidential rhetoric, you can almost believe that he understands how a society really thrives. Obama said in his pseudo-State of the Union Address, “The answers to our problems don’t lie beyond our reach. They exist in our laboratories and universities; in our fields and our factories; in the imaginations of our entrepreneurs and the pride of the hardest-working people on Earth.”

But in just three months, we have seen what Obama means when he talks about “reach.” He doesn’t mean “our reach” but his own. His sense of that reach, and the abrupt and scary speed with which he’s used it, marks him as an executive with a tentacled grip—multiple, crushing, inescapable. No longer the cautious critic of presidential power of the campaign trail, he now sees nothing as beyond his grasp.

Less than a hundred days in, the fully articulated ideological contours of his vision remain unclear—just as he wishes. It suits Obama’s self-image as a mere pragmatic problem solver to never explain, to float from power grab to usurpation as if nothing but thoughtful reaction to the exigencies of the moment guides him. But it’s already obvious that those actions veer strongly toward expansive government, limiting our options in every aspect of national life.

Budget: The government fiscal game works as well as it does politically because most people don’t think of government spending in terms of control over their lives. Most see it as a benefit, a graceful solution to a perceived lack. Healthcare? Obama’s approximated buy—in is $600 billion over a decade—a figure sure to come up grossly short if history is any guide. But most think, well, I’m not the one with $600 billion to toss, so why not?

That money, plus all the many other nonexistent trillions Obama is planning to spend, gets paid back either in debt service down the line—funneling a larger percentage of the lifeblood, time, and effort of our children to Washington and thence to whoever's brave enough to hold U.S. debt by then—or in inflation that eats away at any attempt on our part to save or invest profitably.

When, according to the Congressional Budget Office's analysis of Obama's spending plans, the U.S. government deficit-spends $9.3 trillion over the next decade, that's more than an absurd abstraction. It's enslavement: the hours and days of our lives.

Business and the economy: Here Obama's grip is far less subtle. He's clear and decisive: The financial and industrial economy is his, and he'll do with it as he pleases. What's decided for the U.S. is what's decided for General Motors, as presidential pressure pushes out GM chief Rick Wagoner. Obama and his man at Treasury, Timothy Geithner, want the power to confiscate any company whose failure they claim threatens the larger economy.

Now that he occupies the White House, the new president—who justly pilloried Bush for asserting that national security excused any executive ukase—seems to believe that his own vision of economic security empowers him to take whatever he wants and make any decision he deems necessary, from curtailing CEO compensation to renegotiating mortgage terms. What private sector? This is economic war!

And lest one think this is all about being faithful stewards of the public wealth, as Obama and Geithner like to play it, The Wall Street Journal reported that an unnamed bank was not allowed to return money the Feds had stuck it with in the first bailout wave. The strings attached to those bailout funds gave the federal government effective ownership over the bank; evidently the Obama administration values an excuse for control more than it values taxpayer money.

It also seems primed to use more traditional means of throwing weight around the national economy. The president's pick for antitrust chief, Christine Varney, has already cast a stink eye at Google, expressing concern at a conference last year about the company's "monopoly in Internet online advertising." And Obama's pick to head the Department of Agriculture, former Iowa governor Tom Vilsack, is an enthusiastic supporter of one of the most foolish and damaging federal economic manipulations around, endless ethanol subsidies. Any noises about damping down agricultural subsidies in general, supposedly part of the "fiscally responsible" Obama agenda, are dying in Congress.

State secrets: Even Obama's most ardent supporters are disillusioned by his close adherence to the Bush model when it comes to executive privilege. Obama's DOJ has openly agreed that lawsuits challenging rendition and warrantless-wiretapping programs should be dismissed because trying them would expose state secrets. His legal team declares that the president—and only the president—has the right to make such classified decisions, with neither courts nor Congress, and of course no one as inconsequential as an aggrieved citizen, able to second guess.

That’s troubling enough, but it’s not all. While Attorney General Eric Holder has released some Bush-era documents relating to torture policy, the Obama administration as a whole is, as this article went to press, agonizing over whether to release a further set said to be even more heinous. (Even if they eventually release them, that this wasn’t a no-brainer shows executive secrecy is still far too robust in the administration.) Even an international intellectual-property treaty being actively considered by 27 countries had its contents declared a national-security secret in an Obama DOJ filing in March.

Healthcare: We don’t yet know what combination of mandates, subsidies, government-supplied insurance, and controls will arise. But we do know that the cornerstone of the cost containment Obama seeks will be decisions about what gets covered by the insurance that the government will be guaranteeing, regulating, and demanding. This means rationing and a potentially fatal blow to one of the last markets where expensive and experimental new treatments can be developed and, if found worthwhile, thrive.

Given how Obama has shown such a scrupulous sense of pipers and their right to call the tune in the financial and automotive markets, he is apt to be more explicit than past politicians in insisting that any behavior by companies or individuals that costs the public money must be stringently controlled. That means your health will no longer be your own business but Barack Obama’s.

Environment: The president did not immediately get the cap-and-trade carbon program he wanted. But he is using the powers of the stimulus package and bailout legislation to establish that he can push out corporate execs and take over any company he wants in other fields, so why not in this one, too? His executive branch seems to believe that it can legitimately claim whatever power it says it needs to achieve a goal it can halfway connect to a legitimate congressional mandate.

It is quite possible that Obama’s EPA will claim authority for sweeping action under the Clean Air Act. The president of Clean Air Watch, Frank O’Donnell, told Rolling Stone that an EPA ruling that global warming is a public health danger “gives Obama added leverage in going to Congress. … He can say, ‘I’ve got this authority in my back pocket. If you torpedo cap-and-trade, I’ll have no choice but to deal with this administratively.’”

Foreign policy: Obama claims to be on schedule to wind down our involvement in Iraq. His rosy projections of declining deficits in the out-years—the ones he doesn’t have to worry about now as he tries to keep the plates of an overextended economy spinning for one more month—depend on it. But if a rising insurgency ramps up the killings of U.S. troops or other Iraqis in the last months before the supposed pullout at the end of 2011, who believes that Obama will make good on his pledge?

He has no intention of ending the Bush-era policy of imperial overreach. He's just shifting the theater in which we act out this timeless drama of collapse, with 21,000 more troops promised to Afghanistan for the potentially eternal mission of ending the Taliban insurgency there.

This survey only scratches the surface of bad actions and ominous portents for President Obama's exercise of power. His administration is as cynical about federalism as Bush's, if not more so. Indeed, he has such a yen for creating independent centers of executive power in the form of policy "czars" that even Democratic Sen. Robert Byrd, no advocate of restrained government, recently complained that Obama is threatening "the constitutional system of checks and balances" by giving too much independent authority to the White House outside of Senate-approved department heads. But many other Democrats in Congress are looking to extend presidential reach still further, plumping to give Obama power over the entire food production and distribution system (the proposed "Food Safety Modernization Act") and to shut down the Internet in a "cybersecurity emergency" (the proposed "Cybersecurity Act of 2009").

Given the realities of Obama's practice of presidential power, his official vision seems less important. His team hasn't yet spelled out anything as sinister as the loopholes John Yoo devised for Bush from his Office of Legal Counsel, if only because Obama's pick for OLC, Dawn Johnsen, has had her appointment held up in the Senate, largely over her abortion views. From her record, it's unlikely that she'll give her boss a formalized framework of power. That's not how Obama likes to sell himself. But just because Johnson doesn't deliver some tortuous explanation for why the president can do whatever he wants doesn't mean that her boss will be any more constrained than his predecessor.

For example, the Obama Justice Department's filings in the habeas hearings before U.S. District Court Judge John Bates in the legal challenge by four Bagram detainees no longer relies, as Bush did, on bald declarations of inherent presidential power. But Obama's DOJ does not therefore conclude that the president does not have the power to keep "enemy combatants" locked up indefinitely without habeas rights, even as Obama moves to shut down the public-relations nightmare of Guantanamo and abandon the term "enemy combatants."

The power Obama's Justice Department claims might not be "inherent" any longer. But as explained by Duke Law School's Christopher Schroeder on the website Executive Watch, Obama's team still "argues there is ample authority to detain in the combination of the AUMF [Authorization for Use of Military Force] itself, the president's conceded central role in executing the country's war powers, and international law." Those poor bastards languishing at Bagram and other mystery detention centers aren't likely to be cheered by this supposed change in theories of executive power.

U.S. presidents have been acting outside the explicit bounds of their constitutional mandates from the Adams and Jefferson eras—Alien and Sedition Acts, Louisiana Purchase—through Lincoln, Wilson, Roosevelt, and Johnson to Bush and now Obama. The story of the decay and destruction of constitutional limits on power is as old as the Republic itself. And expansions of executive power—see Richard Nixon with his plethora of new regulatory agencies and wage and price controls—need not be combined with an explicitly developed theory that supports and encourages government metastasis.

Executive overstretch has dominated American government for so long that we usually only hear effective complaints from those fighting to oust the incumbents steamrolling our liberties at any given moment. That's why candidate Obama was so sharp about criticizing Bush's extraconstitutional power claims and was able to find the one war he could be unequivocally against: the one he could blame on his political opponents. Now he perpetuates the same policies, albeit under different names and with different excuses (secrecy and "enemy combatants") or with promises to stop them eventually (Iraq).

As predictable as out-party opposition is in-party realization that, as Obama's right-hand man Rahm Emanuel openly put it, there's no sense in letting a crisis go to waste. After all, the costs of classic, FDR-style "bold, persistent experimentation" are low in such crises. American presidential powerhouses have had various rationales for their abuses—from war for Lincoln, Wilson, and Bush to economic crisis for Roosevelt to playing on a wealthy society's sense of fairness and guilt for Johnson.

Obama's specialty is shaping up to be particularly dangerous because it's hard to dispute given the average American's sensibilities. No call for liberty and constitutional principle seems convincing when Obama is arguing that those relying on government giveaways should have to follow government-set rules. That is, once you've allowed them to go ahead with the handouts, the political game is almost over. Under the guise of "managing the taxpayers' money," Obama and his crew are rewriting mortgages, deciding executive compensation, tossing out CEO's. And note carefully that his plans for where taxpayers' money should go continue to swell, from healthcare to the environment to energy policy to expanded "national service" programs. When taxpayers' money is everywhere—and Obama is doing his best to make sure it is—then Obama's control is everywhere.

The Octo-potus is claiming his space and flexing his grip. As far as he's concerned, it's Barack Obama's country. We're just living in it.

I talked to him this morning and he said it felt like one shake that was over very quickly. Apparently there was some damage in Hawthorne were the quake was centered. Lots of small after shocks.

You don't follow logic and kook'tardedness is all you know.

It's cluelessness about belief kookaburra. You, the retarded Canadian, and the Obominator all suffer from the same problem.

We worry more Tsunami than hurricanes. A lot of the west side is right at sea level. Occasionally a high tide will swamp the neighborhoods by the beach. The sea level rise associated with global warming will do billions in damage here.

If so, why don't you put your replies so they follow what you're replying to, as I indicated above, instead of a paragraph later? Is it too difficult for you? I know you have so many important things to worry about, like the Obama BC story, but still...

Maybe so Eduardo- but radio was in bad shape before the economy tanked. Can radio weather the storm now? Face it Eduardo - not lookin too good buddy boy.

I have my receivers and computer equipment plugged into seperate Isobars. They make a fine pruduct IMO, pretty heavy boxes but the nice colored red and green lights look nice when the lights are out.

I have an HF vertical in the middle of my tiny back yard. It is relatively noisy below 5 Mhz. Otherwise it is very quiet. I use a 65' random wire for bedside SWL, and an MFJ-1024 active for MW.

In May 1969, with only seven months to go before the end of the decade, the first Lunar Module to fly in orbit around the Moon was powered up and readied for undocking from the Command Module.

Astronauts Tom Stafford, John Young and Gene Cernan were about to test out a technique for lunar landing which had first been proposed in 1916 by a Russian mechanic called Yuri Kondratyuk.

Kondratyuk's thesis described how a small landing craft could leave a mothership in lunar orbit to ferry its crew to the surface and back - a technique later referred to as Lunar Orbit Rendezvous or LOR.

Parts of the area in CA from La Quinta through Indio, Coachella, and around the Salton Sea are at or below sea level. It's amusing to see my GPS showing below sea level readings. Like being at the Dead Sea.

I am about 281 feet above Sea level.Even the Easter Flood of 1979 didn't flood my yard and house.Heh, those politicians around here asked for and got a lot of money to study flood control and for some new Levees along the Pearl River next to Jackson.They stold that money.They haven't done zip sh.t about flood control for Jackson and the suburb Cities around Jackson.There is a lot of new construction projects along that streatch of the Pearl River and more to come too.There will be another Jackson flood someday.They will be hollering for lots of more money too, so they can steal that money.
Highy n Dry, that's the way I like it.

Shortwave has been dying for Decades but . . . it is still around and the AM/MW Band will still be around for Decades too ~ RHF

ROTFL. You're a real "card". I was just anticipating the usual kooktardish desperation move.

I've always wanted to try a vertical. I've never read up too much on them. For kicks one time, I hooked my receivers to my Antron. I noticed my Hammarlunds like the antenna pretty well, but not so much my other digitals. What vertical do you use?

That's pretty good if the antenna does well except below 5 megs, I could handle that.

Yeah, they really are nice. The first one I got out of an office that was closing shop, it has four outlets. Since I liked that one so much after using it for seven years that I went and opened my wallet and pocket a bigger one.

Pretty expensive, but with something like that...you get what you pay for and it'll last for a long time.

I have a bunch of them here, and I tossed out a bunch that had corroded badly that I got from the company I was working at moved it's HQ in 1997. I have both 2 and 4 outlet ones. They tossed hundreds of them into a dumpster, some appeared to be brand new, because they weren't the current model being made at the time. I took about 25 of them and gave a dozen or so away to friends and kept the rest. I had them on a shelf in my garage, and when I had to replace one that got popped from a near hit, they weren't in any shape to be used anymore. Too bad. I have a couple of new ones that are made for home entertainment use that seem to be pretty decently made. I had to take one of them apart to see what's in there, right? Some of the surge protectors I've looked inside, even some expensive ones, are pretty scary looking inside. I had one with a bunch of lights, a digital readout, and inside, it looked like an 8 year old put it together.

They wasted amazing amounts of money at that place I worked at. I just used up the last of the paper I liberated from there in 1997 late last year! 11 years of free paper, and I gave 2/3 of it away.

I've always wanted to try a vertical. I've never read up too much on them. For kicks one time, I hooked my receivers to my Antron. I noticed my Hammarlunds like the antenna pretty well, but not so much

That's pretty good if the antenna does well except below 5 megs, I could handle that.

Verticals tend to be quieter than horizontal antennas. A couple of good ones are the 4BTV and 5BTV (four and five band trapped verticals)

I may not agree with everything Eduardo says, but he's got every right on earth to say it. Over the last few years I've actually been quite impressed with his self control and relatively good manners.

Most people couldn't have stayed as calm while being subjected to the idiotic name calling and blatant ethno-hatred from the local drunkards.

What it is, that old concrete septic tank in my front yard near my front porch, over the many, many years, the tank has gradually floated up about three inches above the ground, the top of the tank.But it didn't float up evenly, one side of the tank is still about where it was when the tank was installed in 1947 when this house was built.

So, I am in the process of picking out the rocks in the dirt on top of the tank.Then I will go to the Lowe's store and get some pressure treated boards to frame around the tank and I will add some more dirt.Then I will go to Hutto's Home and Garden Center on Ellis Ave and ask them what kind of soil conditioner I should mix in the dirt with my hoe.(garden hoe) Then I will ask my sister (she has a very nice flower bed/garden) what kind of flowers I should plant in the dirt? Anything that doesn't have thorns or briars.
I am making a flower bed on top of that old tank.

Obama flipped 9 red states to blue. The Democrats control the all three branches of the Federal government, 28 of 50 of the governorships and the state houses.

Of course, Texas and Alaska are blue states that have a lot of territory.
Alaska has a small population,too.

Yea, that would have been real "funny", if Brenda Ann was Jewish - right? We've tried everything to "break" Eduardo, but no such luck - LOL! You moral midget.

"Univision downsizes in San Jose"

Univision will sell "Radio Cadena" KLOK (1170) to Principle Broadcasting for $7.65 million. The Spanish-language news/talk format will move to the HD2 channel for Univision's KBRG (100.3). It also owns San Jose's KVVF (105.7).

http://www.insideradio.com/

Yup, Univision is doing just fine, like the rest of the major radio groups looking at bankruptcy this year - LOL! Good, let them all fail and take their IBLOCK jammers with them - then, radio can be taken back by the local broadcasters who will turn off the jammers. Radio will never be a growth industry again, as all it can do is downsize and go private - retreat!

The Beautiful Music format on 530 is Cuba. There may, as is common in Cuba, be more than one transmitter.

I ought to chisel my name on the concrete top of that concrete septic tank and raise it up vertically.When I croak, all they would need to do is chunk me in there and pile on some dirt.

Yeah, you can't beat office closeouts, I still have lots of paper. I actually can't remember the last time I bought printer paper.

It doesn't make common sense logic that recessions are global. They should be limited to a country or a province/state.

The economy is being manipulated by the elites. Watch 'The Obama Deception' - a film title that could easily have been called 'The Bush Deception' or 'The Clinton Deception'. They're all the same.

Only John F. Kennedy in recent decades was a real President because he learned that the elites controlled the policy of the whole world. Kennedy wanted to eliminate the Federal Reserve and print real money connected to the gold and silver supply. 'They' killed him for getting close to doing that.

I had a feeling you did BA.;-) I've always wanted to get my DX-394 in that dark indiglo blue that the 398 has. No one does it though.
Good story, I had bought some nite lites from the local dollar store over eight- nine yrs. ago. I think the two of them were 99 cents. I had one plugged in the living and one in the bathroom. One of them finally petered out so I looked up the model number and name of the company on the back and shot them an email.

I told them how much I enjoyed their product and if there was a local store where I could purchase more. I never got a response via email, then a week and a half later I got a package in the mail.:-)

They sent me a total of four of these nite lites (two in each package) and they are are the new upgraded ones. The front of the package says "Forever-Glo LED lasts 25 years" and they are "cool blue." They're those flat panels and when I plugged one I about flipped, they are extremely blue so too speak, very bright but in a soft cool way. One in the radio room/one in the bathroom/one in the living room/one in the kitchen. They just totally light everything up, pretty cool.

The name of the company is Amertac, model #71080LED, highly recommend them, they look sharp plus save some money over time and I can turn off those lights now.

There is no such thing as "solid rock" in an area where the question is "when is that entire region going to be decimated." Earthquakes love solid rock.;-)

I wished no one in RRS lived in California or any of the surrounding fault areas. Because when it goes down, I mean "really" goes down, it will be unlike anything just about any of us has seen.

Move to SW Ohio Telamon.:-) IMO it is one of the safest areas to live in. Until recently, last summer, when we actually had those hurricane winds it was. From what I have been told that was only a taste test. I couldn't believe that day. I could actually "see" the wind. To many of you that live in those areas I am sure that isn't a big deal, but it gave me much respect for the wind that I never had before. My antennas never flinched.<patting my back>

That's a pretty good pirate story there.

Got a better one, and an FCC letter to show for it. :)

1973, I was 18. I set up a 20 watt FM pirate in a small town about 25 miles outside of Portland, OR. There was a large ridge between me and the city, so virtually no signal got out of there toward Portland, and not much got into the area FROM Portland.

The TX was a homebrew redesign of a 220 MHz AM ham rig. The coils were simple to rewind. The oscillator stage was at ~12 MHz IIRC, and all had to do to make it FM (it was a variable oscillator to start with) was to add a varactor diode and bias network.

I built my own stereo modulator for it using Compactron tubes. It wasn't the most stable, since it was a free running 19 KHz oscillator, but it did work.

Range on the setup, including a home-made 1/4 wave vertical dipole on my roof, was ~ 15 miles, and could be heard much further away at the top of a mountain about 26 miles distant, on a Sony stereo boom box (one of the very earliest such). Don't know what the range on a decent car radio would have been, since the car I drove back then didn't have a radio in it.

I had a deal with a local record shop where they would loan me a new LP in exchange for a public radio style sponsorship plug. It worked out really well, and I had a good listenership (remember that signal problem mentioned above?).

It all came crashing in one day when the local FCC field engineer stopped by (probably didn't help that I was dissing the FCC fairly heavily) to shut me down. Seems that I was interfering with the channel 12 TV reception (nearly non-existant at the best of times) of a neighbor. Two guys came to my door and asked me if I had a pirate radio station. After admitting I did, they asked to see it. I showed them the setup, and they asked if I had a microphone (stupid question, since I obviously did, and they could see it there on the boom at the console). I said yes, and they said "open it, and tell your listeners you're going off the air by order of the FCC." I got on and made my spiel, then they said, "now, turn it off, and LEAVE it off!"

They didn't even confiscate anything (amazing, that was, especially since hanging on the window frame above my console was my 3rd. class phone license with broadcast endorsement, which wasn't even cancelled, and I went on to gain a 1st class phone license a few years later), but I did get a nice letter from them a few weeks later. Paraphrasing: You done it. Don't do it again, or we'll slam your butt in jail or fine you $20G, or both!..

It was fun. It wasn't my last pirate. I even had one in Portland on AM a year later. Cat and mouse with Uncle Charlie.. it's the American way. :)

The Roberto Bianci Midsize Swiss Chronograph With Date Watch is equipped to track more than just the time, with three chronograph subdials and a convenient date calendar located at three o'clock. Constructed with a stainless steel case, this business timepiece includes a square stainless steel bezel, and a stainless steel link bracelet with a push-button deployment clasp. A scratch-resistant sapphire window shields the textured white dial face, which contrasts beautifully with the timepiece's three black chronograph subdials. The dial also includes silver-tone hour markers and Arabic numeral indexes at five, seven, and 12 o'clock. This practical timepiece is powered by Swiss quartz movement and is water resistant to 99 feet.

AND, as usual, coming out of left field, would you kindly repost anything negative i have posted about Tele. Tel has always been straight forward and quite honest with me. too many years ago, when I started to become a reg here, after too many years on the road with work, Tele was one of the first to welcome me here. Telemon, as with Ace, and a few others here, are valuable posters, that receive my utmost respect. experience, information, and tips are why i'm here. the posters here, who are really into radio, are the ones i read, the rest, as yourself, mostly into the bit-bucket. so, why don't you post some on-topic info, and drop the off-topic, spam/crap you gum up the group with? "oh the silence" i wish.

This blender is really what I expected. I don't blend hard stuff, or even ice, so far, so I guess it is expected that it should work without problems.
The only reason for the 4 stars is that the motor makes some loud noises sometimes.
All in all, I definitely recommend this product.
Bought this specifically to make homemade mayonnaise. Big mistake. Not as easy as seen on YouTube, or as described in the instruction manual, trust me!! After going through a few dozen eggs, I finally threw in the towel on homemade mayo. Anyway, still a rock solid blender, and makes up smoothies and milkshakes in a snap with easy clean up. So I highly recommend it for that use.
I could do an infomercial for this product. In a day I have blended up frozen strawberries, ice cubes, protein shakes, and made cream of aspargus soup in a pot on the stove with my Smart Stick. It chops up everything smoothly and it is easy to clean. No more lumpy protein shakes in the mornings, I am looking forward to making chilled soups and fruit sorbets this summer and I can't wait to use my Smart Stick when I make a vat of Thanksgiving Gravy. This is my new favorite kitchen appliance.
Always wanted one of these & the Cuisinart Imersion Blender is the best. Easy to use & easy to clean. Can use this for soups & smoothies & no need to use a blender.
For making soups and sauces you can't ask for anything better than this. Clean up is a snap. I love it.
The versatile stick design of the Cuisinart Smart stick Hand Blender lets users blend ingredients right in pots, pitchers, bowls, or clear plastic beaker that's included. A powerful 200-watt motor operates with an easy one-touch control. Blends drinks, purees soup, mixes pancake and crepe batters in seconds! Both stainless steel blending shaft and beaker are dishwasher-safe

Just how powerful is the Power Pro Wide-Mouth Food Processor? So powerful, that we had to design special heavy-duty suction cup feet to keep it in place while it slices, chops, shreds, grates and purees whole apples, potatoes, cucumbers, onions, blocks of cheese or any other whole foods with ease. With a fierce, 500-watt motor and tons of torque working in concert under its sleek and sturdy exterior, this is one heavy-duty piece of machinery that performs as great as it looks.

Most people voted no because the propositions were indecipherable. I still don't know what they were about.

The mouth-breathing teabaggers are trying to characterize it as some kind of tax revolt by liberal Californians, but I think it was more a combination of confusion and indifference.

There is no cooling going on. In fact, the warming will kick into high

Don't be ridiculous. We have spent many billions retrofitting in the past 15 years. Even when we had 40 billion dollars in damage, we only lost about 75 lives.

I missed some of the big items, like the giant plotter they dumped when they got a new one that had higher pic resolution, and the huge paper shredder that you could put a 1/2" of paper into at once. They dumped that because they got a new one, and the old one had a few scratches on it, not thinking they could just "hide" it at the new place, until the other one got looking as bad, then they would have two of them. The wasted money amazed me, all the time, not just during the move, but the move was a goldmine of stuff for those willing to get into the dumpster, or ask "Well, if you're gonna dump that anyway, can I have it?". Most of the time, the answer was, "Sure!"

A co worker and I were dedicated dumpster divers, we would come every day about a half hour early, make our picks, and then divide it up. Every other day, one of us would get 1st pick, if one of us was off, whoever was there would just call the other one, and say, "Hey, I got a paper cutter, and there's a paper punch in the closet for you!" . I was honest about it and always gave him the second big item, I hope he was. Since I got a lot of good stuff that way, I guess he was.

I had so much paper the first time I got it, my SUV was nearly hitting the ground in back. I got three loads, and gave at least two away to friends and their kids. It wasn't the really cheap paper either, it was one step up, and wasn't that almost transparent stuff we have at work now.

About 2 years ago, I transplanted blue LEDS into a friend's scanner to replace the annoying amber ones it came with for the backlight. It wasn't a fun job, I didn't have my desoldering station yet, but it turned out fine, and he was thrilled with the results. It looks great in a dark room, running on the AC adaptor, as using that backlight on batteries eats them up amazingly fast.

I already have him kind of set up to do it to his new scanners, as soon as the warranty is up. I haven't taken any of that particular model apart yet to see how big a deal it is to do, but I would be willing to bet they did it exactly the same way, with six tiny surface mount amber LEDS, probably identically to the older model. If so, it's a half hour tops to do. I'll probably do mine too, as I don't like amber LEDS either. Maybe green for me though, I have to see his first.

It is obvious that IBOC simply doesn't work on either AM, or FM.
Dropouts and interference are common, and the power increase for FM will just jam IBOC and non-IBOC stations, and will junk up analog listening.

This is another FCC debacle, dare we mention the beer-chugging NAB, when no one predicted nor objected to obscene digital pulses feeding into conventional broadband ports that will severely interfere with other FM and AM signals on free radios everywhere because of the well known intermod rules when tuning across the radio dial. Posted today on RBR - yea, where the fuck are the lawyers, and the class-action suits against the FCC, iBiquity, NAB, and the HD Radio Alliance? Are they waiting for the FM-HD power increase to cause them to lose revenues? Bob Savage (WYSL) already lost a $10,000 sports advertiser!

"COMMENT ON HD RADIO"

"I am the Engineering Manager of a Los Angeles area AM & FM combo and have nothing good to say about AM HD Radio and little positive for FM HD. The systems are seriously flawed and cause a host of problems including serious adjacent channel interference. Fundamentally, HD Radio needs to be aborted, and the last thing it needs is a power increase. In its place, at least for FM, I'd deploy FMeXtra because it's a good spectral neighbor and it's inexpensive. It's time we station engineers spoke up despite being muzzled. HD Radio is just plain bad science."

"Court Finds FCC Violated Administrative Procedure Act in BPL Decision"

"After reading the decision, General Counsel Imlay observed, 'The decision of the Court of Appeals, though long in coming, was well worth the wait. It is obvious that the FCC was overzealous in its advocacy of BPL, and that resulted in a rather blatant cover-up of the technical facts surrounding its interference potential.'"

I wish it would rain real good over here.Maybe then that sweet little puppy Dog next door could at least lap up some water off of that concrete slab it has to stay on all the time over there.

That little puppy is barely two something months old, perhaps going on three months old.Yesterday, I told both of those democraps over there the Dog needs some food and water.Yesterday at about 5:45 PM I was putting my tools up, I saw that democrap woman's little girl (she is between four to five years old) hitting that little Dog with some switches.The Dog rolled over on his back, she threw the switches down and started hitting the Dog on his belly.There is NO reason to treat a little Dog like that! NO reason at all!

It is TRUE! democrats and libs REALLY ARE CLINICALLY INSANE!!!!!!!!!!

That Dog goes all day long with NO food and water.The Dog oviously doesn't get enough food.I feel sorry for that poor little puppy Dog.

Eduardo, you claimed on RI that Panama researched IBOC, DAB, and DRM thoruoghly, but since my blog sits right under iBiquity's site, I haven't had ONE hit from Panama in the past year. You are again totally full of crap, and make nothing but unsubstantiated claims!
iBiquity pulled a fast-one on Panama - wait unitl they find out that

I just recently gave you the name of a person of enormous recognition and integrity... the past chairperson of the Pulitzer Prize board and a 30-year member of the Interamerican Press Association, publisher of a significant newspaper in Kansas: Edward Seaton.

Until you contact him and ask if I owned radio stations in Ecuador in the period between 1964 and 1970, you can shut up.

Edward and I were friends while he was in Ecuador on a Fulbright Scholarship grant he received after graduating from Harvard. He's been in my stations, heard them on the air and knows about them. What better proof could you want than someone of such a prominent public profile?

Push-Up Bars. By using your body weight as resistance, these push-up bars will dramatically increase your strength as well as range-of-motion and turn ordinary push-ups into an explosive new workout routine. Uniquely designed to alleviate stress on your wrists and hands, the comfort-grip handles offer an infinite number of angles to blast your chest, shoulder and triceps muscles for maximum size and strength gains. With the turn of a lever they fold-down flat so you can pack them in your luggage. Simple to use, strong, sturdy and durable--they're built to last a lifetime!
Increase your range of motion and boost your strength with this pair of push-up bars from Body Solid. Push-ups are one of the most effective upper body exercises around, as they use your body weight as resistance. These push-up bars, however, take it to the next level by creating an explosive new workout routine. Uniquely designed to alleviate stress on your wrists and hands, the bars offer comfort-grip handles with an infinite number of angles to blast your chest, shoulder, and tricep muscles for maximum size and strength gains. And when you're done working out, the bars fold down flat with the turn of a lever, helping them fit efficiently in your luggage when you're on the road. Simple to use, strong, sturdy, and durable, the bars carry a lifetime warranty.

Yep, the BC issue had to be the most rationale thing going around. Oh, yeah the persecution issue - priceless in its boundless wisdom. Only you could think that paranoia is rationale.

to be good for the rest of us. It is fun to watch him walk down Kooktard

It's got way more capacity than it looks! a total of three compartments! one main and two side compartments! all of which are very spacious! great for students like me who needs to bring a laptop with all kinds of books to college!
Pros: I bought this bag after researching through many different ones. I was looking for something that was cheap, yet stylish and functional, and it fits all of those and have been using it for almost 3 months now. I ride my bike to work everyday and sometimes have to carry my Laptop. The laptop sleeve, the padding and the front straps make it extremely easy on my shoulders and there is still a lot of space left for my gym clothes etc. I have taken this bag on hikes and snowboarding. The material is water resistant enough to keep my stuff dry.

Cons: Comparing to my previous backpack, the number of pockets are not as many. The small strap on the top is not padded, so its not comfortable to carry in one hand. The shoulder straps are solid foam design and not the mesh type, which even though comfortable does not allow for a lot of ventilation.

Haven't yet used the feature to attach a Hydration pack.
Easily under the size limit, it works well as an airline carry on leaving your hands free at check-in. the waist and sternum strap distribute the weight very nicely easy to walk to distant gates, to catch bus, etc.

Wish it had 1 more small front pocket. An inch bigger in length and width to get right up to the limit would be perfect for travel.
The zipper(2) pull tabs missing on both of the right sides. This was the first thing noticed, and will be returning it. Also snap buckles(3) is excessive with the short straps. There should be a way to tuck them in when not in use.
I've been using this backpack for a little over a month now and overall it is a very good bag.

Pros:
Two large compartments one of which has a laptop sleeve.
Second large compartment has plenty of smaller "pouch" areas to store stuff like spare cell charger and other assorted items.
Two water bottle sleeves on either side of the backpack.
Thickly padded shoulder straps.
The cross chest strap really takes some of the pressure off the lower back.

Cons:
Shoulder strap length could be a bit longer. I'm a large guy and I have to extend them all the way to wear the backpack.
Laptop sleeve does not have a top or other means to firmly secure a laptop.

Overall this is a decent backpack but being a large person I'd probably opt for something with longer shoulder straps next time.
The Agave is a fresh take on Outdoor Style. This daypack is a comfortable fit from campus to trail
A good backpack surely sits atop the list of campus essentials. Enter the JanSport Agave, a 2,000-cubic-inch school backpack that doubles as a hiking daypack during the summer. The Agave offers dual AirCore shoulder straps made of comfortable dual-density foam, along with a breathable mesh back panel that helps you stay dry throughout the day. The backpack's two large compartments, meanwhile, can hold everything from books to sack lunches to extra shoes. Add in a versatile storage sleeve that can hold either a 15.4-inch laptop or a 3-liter hydration bladder and you have an ideal pack for all your on-the-go activities. Other details include hydration tube management on the shoulder straps, a front utility pocket with an organizer, an easy-access V-loft pocket, dual side water bottle pockets, side compression straps to help you manage the load, and daisy chain quick-clip points. Made of 600-denier polyester and 420-denier double diamond dobby, the Agave measures 13.5 by 19 by 10 inches (W x H x D) and weighs 1 pound 7 ounces. About JanSport For more than 30 years, JanSport has created products to help you carry the stuff you need, where you need it, in the most functional and fashionable way possible. I wish these sandals had a smooth sole. I bought these because I teach ballroom dancing 25 hours a week, and my feet need something soft to relax. These don't cut it. I really should return them.
My son needed something to wear in the shower at college. He says these are comfortable both in and out of the shower.
i bought these to use as shower shoes in the gym, so far they are ok. nothing to write home about - personally i found scuba shoes to work better and maintain less of an odor, as well as being cheaper.
I actually bought this as a Christmas gift for a friend. And it was exactly what he wanted and was very excited about them.
They were also delivered in a very timely manner, and I wasn't fretting about whether or not they would be here in time for Christmas.
A great inexpensive gift!!
This is a great sandal, and it was 30% less than anywhere else on the net

Kooktards always feel they are being persecuted, ignored, and always, mocked.

If they think gays choose to be gay, does a kooktard choose to be a kook?

Telemundoh seems to have gone into the "gay insult" mode that kooktards almost always fall into, somehow thinking that calling someone gay is going to just devastate them.

Apparently, Telemundoh thinks we're under 13. It won't work on us, but it seems to work on him. Call him gay, and he loses it. He's funny as hell when he gets mean, kind of like one of those tiny, vicious little dogs that think they are tough guys.

I just quote from other sources, such as Radio World, Ramsey, Del Colliano, oter blogs, etc. No lies. Point is that there have been no searches for "HD Radio". Got one yesterday from Aruba, for the first time. So, you telling me that no one in Panama speaks English, and that has kept 90+ other countries from visiting my blog?

Radio Ad Biz Posts Worst Quarter in History
May 21, 2009

-By Katy Bachman

The radio advertising business posted its worst quarter in history. National and local ad spending combined fell 26 percent to $2.8 billion, according to figures released late Thursday (May 21) by the Radio Advertising Bureau. Network radio, the segment of the business that held up most of last year, fell 13 percent to $238 million. Off-air revenue fell 12 percent to $264 million.

Revenue from radio's digital platforms, including online, streaming and HD Radio side channels, was the medium's one bright spot, up 13 percent to $101 million.

Factoring all segments of the radio business, radio revenue was down 24 percent to $3.4 billion.

The RAB's estimates are based on a pool of more than 100 markets as reported by Miller, Kaplan, Arase & Co., and extrapolated to the entire U.S.

- Is that why the feds are investigating Arbitr[ary]on's
- PPM meter for undercounting some demos?

Dave there you go promoting another Liberal Lie.

Yes the Obama-Regime© is trying to Intimidate Arbitron to Silence-The-Truth about What Real People Listen-To On-the-Radio.

The old Diary System 'weighted' certain Demos to 'favor' Minority Listeners and Radio Stations.
-aka- Affirmative Action

The new People Meters simply track what People
in-fact Listen-To whether they are : White, Black, Brown, Yellow, Red, Male, Female, LGBTG, Hispanic, etc . . .
http://www.arbitron.com/portable_people_meters/home.htm

Oops the new People Meters report that the Number of so-called Liberals who in-fact Listen-To AM Talk-Radio is actually Higher that was previously 'guesstimated' by the old Diary System.

were Tax and Spend Rip-Offs.

The Citizens {Voters} of California simply said "NO" to Liberal Tax and Spend Rip-Offs.

We're all aware of the potential. It's part of the price you pay to live in a place with interesting topography. I am 10 miles from the San Andreas Fault. I do not put heavy stuff where it can fall on people. I keep a couple weeks work of food, water, and propane at the house, and never let my tanks get below 1/3 full. I think about "the big one" every day.

Exactly what are rednecks? Many years ago I saw an article in the Old Capitol Museum http://mdah.state.ms.us/museum about rednecks.They were the old Southern democrat party people and some of them wore red hankerchiefs around their damn democrat necks.

There are certain kinds of Birds that have Red Necks.There is a Redneck Fishing Lures factory in New Hebron,Mississippi. http://web1.userinstinct.com/25096657-redneck-lures.htm When I used to work at the auto/truck/lawnmowers battery factory that used to be in Florence,Mississippi, there was a big old guy who worked there, he was from New Hebron, he looked sort of like Andre the Giant, Wrestler guy.One of those guys at the factory used to run and jump on him just for fun.That big old boy could mop the whole factory floor with that other guy if he wanted to.

Those Freaks out there with their Stupid sterotyping are as full of Sh.t as a Christmas arse Turkey! they damn sure look like it too!

Untrue. The Diary system continues in 250 markets, and attempts to achieve via recruitment and weighting up or down total proportionality with the market population and all subsets.

<The new People Meters simply track what People

The meter based results are also weighted up or down to achieve proportionality.

You can move content 35-54's did not listen to at all on AM to FM and find it in the top tier of rated stations.

WIBC Indianapolis, moved from AM to FM. Pre-move, was not even top 10 25-54, after move, and in 60 days, was in the top 3 stations in the sales demos.

Two generations of Americans will not listen to AM, no matter what is on it.

3893. Eduardo - lower-ranked AM talk formats generated more revenue than higher-ranked FM music formats!

Is This The Breakout Year For FM Talk?
A message from Radio Ink Publisher Eric Rhoads

Pioneers are the people with arrows in their backs. Talk radio pioneer Walter Sabo told me more than 15 years ago that FM talk would become a hot format, but it was a tough sell. He suffered a lot of criticism and resistance because companies that owned big talk stations didn't want to cannibalize their successful AMs. After all, AM had been dead for years until it was born again with talk radio. Sabo's vision from back then has yet to come to full fruition -- but it may be just around the corner. Here's why:

There is a 50-50 chance radio will lose the performance fee issue this year or next and will have to pay some percentage of revenues to record labels. With the current state of radio, taking dollars off the top line may be economically impractical, especially if the rates are as far out of line as some anticipate. Music radio could become a shadow of its former self, and we may see a proliferation of FM-based talk formats. Though there will likely be multiple traditional talk outlets doing politics, I believe a new breed of FM talkers will succeed by offering variations on talk lifestyle formats with younger demographic targets.

Because many believe they see this coming, there will be companies, perhaps those with less successful music stations, that will want to establish a beachhead now, before everyone comes to the realization that music formats will be less profitable.

The generation that grew up with music on FM is now favoring talk programming, and the generation behind them is entering the age when talk becomes more interesting. Younger, hipper FM-talk presentations like "real radio" and new variations for younger audiences will be embraced in every market. And with PPM results showing how much listenership National Public Radio is taking, it's clear that a large chunk of all listening is talk-based. Commercial radio will begin to engage strategies to take those audiences away from NPR.

According to BIA, in 16 of the 20 top U.S. radio markets, lower-ranked AM talk formats generated more revenue than higher-ranked FM music formats. Meanwhile, Arbitron says the combined spoken-word formats -- news, talk, sports -- add up to the most most-listened-to format in the country, comprising 17.5 percent of radio listening.

But 80 percent of all radio listening takes place on FM. So imagine what could happen to talk stations on FM. If the total of all the talk in your market is a combined 10 share or less, there is an average of seven points to be gained by an FM talker.

Of course, the talk format has more available inventory before it's not considered annoying. Music stations may find they need to reduce inventory in order to compete. And in almost all markets where an FM talker competes with an AM talker, the FM is outperforming the AM. Typically, there are multiple choices for similar music formats, which further dilutes opportunity. But FM talk takes over in most of its markets rapidly, often within one or two rating periods.

For those of you who fear that putting on an FM talk station could cannibalize your AM talker, the evidence is to the contrary, especially if you're doing a talk format designed for FM. For instance, when Walter Sabo launched WTKS, it took no audience from traditional AM talker WDBO and shared no cume. Most of its cume is shared with the alternative rocker in the market and with WOCL and, formerly, with WMMO. The same held true at NJ 101.5, which shared audience with classic rocker WAXQ-FM.

If I were a betting man, I'd bet that spoken word, which saved AM radio, may in fact be the format that soars on FM in every market. New iterations of talk will emerge as this soon-to-occur phenomenon takes radio by storm. Can you say "opportunity"?

Eric Rhoads
www.radioink.com

Fm music-oriented stations will die - AM news/talks/sports rule! Hear these words:

"According to BIA, in 16 of the 20 top U.S. radio markets, lower-ranked AM talk formats generated more revenue than higher-ranked FM music formats. Meanwhile, Arbitron says the combined spoken-word formats -- news, talk, sports -- add up to the most most-listened-to format in the country, comprising 17.5 percent of radio listening."

You are provd full-of-shit once again - LOL! HD Radio is dead!

Today I went to the Goodwill store, I bought a short hair curly hair woman's wig for $1.50
Then I went to the Wal Mart Gestapo store.I saw some Popular Mechanics magazines at the Gestapo store, the magazines are printed/published in the Illegal Criminal Wetback spanish language, first time I have ever seen that before around here.The Gestapo store is Sucking up to those Criminals around here.I have always known Popular Mechanics magazines and some other American magazines are also printed/published in some other Countries.I Don't like to see that Criminal Crap around here!

Then, I went across Highway 18 (from the Gestapo store) to the Lowe's store and I bought some pressure treated boards for the flower bed I am making on top of my old concrete septic tank in my front yard.On the front doors of the Lowe's store it days, ENTER and below that it says ENTRADA.

I spent five days visiting Mexico in 1992, or maybe it was 1993.I know what Entrada and Salida and Returno means.

In LA, 13.6% of listening by persons 12 and over is to talk (news, talk and sports) stations, and it takes 10 of them to get this.

In 25-54, where nearly all the money is made, not one talk station is in the top 10, and the first one appears at #15. In that age group, there are under 10 shares of listening to talk, news and sports.

The reason talk stations are good revenue generators is that they average 50% to 60% more commercial time per hour than music stations... with music stations around 10-12 minutes per hour and talkers closer to 20 minutes.

What is happening is that talk formats are moving to FM... the latest is Memphis... leaving AM with even less a draw for listeners.

Funny, because the article I just posted stated that lower-ranked AMs bill more than higher-ranked FMs.

1) Perhaps, it is because lower-ranked AMs bill more than higher-ranked FMs?

2) Perhaps, it is because IBOC has especially been a failure on AM?

3) Perhaps, it is because Eduardo is jealous of the news/talk/sports formats on AM, which FMs are now started to move to, especially with the RIAA royalties looming?

4) Perhaps, it is because AMs (pre-IBOC) covered up to 30 states each (WLW), and he is just plain jealous?

5) Perhaps, it is because his Parents relentlessly beat him as a child with his AM radio?

Would appreciate your thoughts - LOL!

It will be less for a few years, but if the product is good, it will attract a different and saleable audience.

As it was, the station barely was "in the book" and some books was not there at all.

WTKS and NJ 101 are several decades old in their formats, and are not traditional news talk, so they would not take audience from that sort of station. Both are sort of alternative talk, and are rather unique in the industry.

The stations having success moving or migrating to FM are the "Rush and Friends" stations, which note incredible 25-54 jumps immediately.

The successful cases are mostly existing AM formats moving to FM, like WIBC, KOMO, KIRO, KTAR, WTOP, etc. There is an abandonment of AM taking place.

None had any measurable audience outside the local groundwave area, and the expanded coverage is at night when radio listening declines by about 70% anyway. Stations do not sell coverage or listenership outside their home market, and have not since the 50's and early 60's.

I started working in FM in 1959 when we could do logs 90 daysin advance

Well Eduardo, did you get beat with an AM radio or not? I suspect you were hit in the head frequenctly as child. This, of course, could explain many of your confused viewpoints.

Or, is it possible that they made you stick your fingers in the vacuum tube socket of an AM radio? High voltage could also explain the brain damage as well.

He believes he see's AM radio for what it is. He might be right or wrong. Radio's current paradigm reflects ratings matter, bigger is better. Uh mass media is dead, bigger isn't better and the internet is a huge game changer. Small market AM radio thrives without numbers and smaller is better. Stations serve their advertisers, communities and relationships matter much more than ratings.

- The stations having success moving or migrating
- to FM are the "Rush and Friends" stations, which
- note incredible 25-54 jumps immediately.

Proving that the Younger Generations Likes {Loves} the "Rush and Friends" Talk-Radio Formats once they hear them on FM : Within 5~10 Years FM Radio will be Talk-Radio; and 50% of "Rush and Friends" Broadcast Radio Stations will be on FM. Thus creating a whole new Generation of Conservative Talk-Radio Listeners on the FM Radio Band. This 'trend' could spell the Political Doom of the Democrat Party of the USA and the ObamaNestas© for 15~25 Years.

The Future of Radio is the FM Radio Band.

The Future of Talk-Radio is on the FM Radio Band.

The Future of American Political Thought will be heard on the FM Radio Band.

Extremely informative link RHF, I enjoyed that. The freeking quake was so strong it changed the current of the river....lol....that is "almost" unbelievable, like maybe a urban legend. But I have no doubt that is true and it just shows not only the destruction one can cause but to literally change current flow.

I can picture two men out there fishing when it went down. I'll leave the rest to your imagination or heaven forbid a cowboy and his lady doing the hanky panky, I better stop. ;-)

<Small market AM radio thrives without numbers and <smaller is better. Stations serve their advertisers, communities and <relationships matter much more than ratings.

That's not entirely true. AMs in smaller markets generally prosper if attached to one or more FMs.

Many AMs in such markets are gone...

WLNG AM in Sag Harbor was sold to allow an AM in New York to upgrade; they continued on FM only and never missed the AM. KYOR in Blythe, CA, shut down its AM and kept on with FM as they found nobody used or needed the AM. And like these, there are a growing number of examples.

Many AMs now see the land the transmitter is on to be worth more than the station. Guess where that leads?

But the major trend is for smaller market AMs to now simulcast their sister FM.

The Holy Quran

Please forgive us for any disturbance, but we have an important subject to address to you regarding FAITH, and we Don't intend to overload your email with unnecessary messages…

Quran Means "Recitation"

The word "Quran" means "that which is recited; or that which is dictated in memory form." As such, it is not a book, nor is it something that reaches us only in written form.

The documentation in writting about the Quran has been preserved in museums thoughout the world, including the Topekopi Palace in Istanbul, Turkey, the museum in Tashkent, Uzbekistan and also in England. Keep in mind also, the Quran is only considered "Quran" while it is in the recitation form, not in the written or the book form. The word for what is written and held in the hand to be read by the eye is called "mus-haf" (meaning script or that which is written down).

Only One Version - Arabic

There are no different versions of the Quran in the Arabic language, only different translations and of course, none of these would be considered to hold the value and authenticity of the original Arabic Recitation. The Quran is divided up into 30 equal parts, called "Juz'" (parts) in the Arabic language. These are learned by Muslims from their very early beginnings as children.

21. If WE had sent down this Qur'an on a mountain, thou wouldst, certainly, have seen it humbled and rent asunder for fear of ALLAH . And these are similitudes that WE set forth for mankind that they may reflect.
22. HE is ALLAH and there is no god beside HIM, the Knower of the unseen and the seen. HE is the Gracious, the Merciful.

23. HE is ALLAH and there is no god beside HIM, the Sovereign, the Holy One, the Source of peace, the Bestower of security, the Protector, the Mighty, the Subduer, the Exalted. Holy is ALLAH, far above that which they associate with HIM.
24. HE is ALLAH, the creator, the Maker, the Fashioner. HIS are the most beautiful names. All that is in the heavens and the earth glorifies HIM, and HE is the Mighty, the Wise.

The 2010 was an awesome receiver. Very sensitive, ergonomically delightful and it handled external antennas pretty well, excluding the static blowout problem. I thought it would always be my favorite portable, but then I bought an Eton E1. The 2010 was the King of Portables for ever 20 years. Now, the crown has been passed to the E1.

OK Abo Mahab,

Is Barack {Muhammad} 'Hussein' Obama "The Mahdi" http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mahdi
Common Muslim Beliefs -wrt- The Mahdi
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mahdi#Muslim_beliefs_common_to_both_Sunnis_and_Shias
* The Mahdi Obama could be a Descendant of the Prophet Muhammad of the line of Fatimah.
{After 13+ Centuries All Is Possible}

* Mahdi Obama will bear the name Muhammad
as many claim was on his original BC.

* Mahdi Obama Will Rule for either seven, nine or nineteen years. {President-for-Life}

* Mahdi Obama Will Re-Distribute Wealth.

* Mahdi Obama's Coming Will Be Accompanied by the Raising of a Black Standard. {He Is The Living Standard}

* Mahdi Obama's Coming will be Accompanied by the Appearance of the Anti-Christ) in the East. {China}

* Mahdi Obama will Fill the World with Justice and Fairness at a time when the World will be filled with Oppression.

Absolutely. There is no other payback than preserving a bit of the history of radio. There's tens of thousands of dollars in the purchase of publications, scanners, the 150 gig site, and I've only just started. There are nearly 2000 issues of Broadcasting in airtight containers in my garage waiting to be scanned, and I am trying to get the few remaining Broadcasting Yearbooks to complete the 1935-1980 goal of the site.

Arnold has terminated his political career.

At first he seemed to have the good business sense to be governor but that turned out to be a fake front. All talk and no walk just like the idiot we have for president.

3955. Are Internet radios really good ?

I can listen online. Say, I can listen to 100,000 radios and shows at http://radiotime.com/. But an Internet radio is better cos I needn't use a computer and so it's radiation-proof. The thing is: What should I do if the radio company closes down? Can my radio pick up signals from another company? Any comments and suggestions are welcome.

Not really. The fist six extended the recent tax hikes for two more years. The last one, the only one that passed, stated the legislature can not vote themselves a raise if the budget was not balanced or in the black.

Very small sunspots where the field lines are not twisted much or very strong. Look at the magnetogram where the red spots are negative gauss and the blue positive gauss.

Mike,

You are absolutely right about the E1. Its audio quality and signal stability are incredible. Shortwave stations broadcasting from thousands of miles away sound like local AM banders. The E1 truly rivals and possibly surpasses some tabletops.

Depends on the radio. My Sony unit can get at least all the stations available on Live365, Shoutcast and others.

The 'Fist Six' ? Is that a San Fran gay political action group? Sounds depraved...and just what gives then the right to extend tax hikes?

Sorry Telemundoh...I don't think so. I wasn't posting about you, BTW, at least I hope not. You have enough things to fixate on like Obama's BC, adding Clinton's dick might overwhelm you.

Fixating about sex, both straight and gay, is pretty much the standard operating procedure of ultra right wingers.

Now just who might be one of those?

Joe was funny, I liked Lou Gordon better. I wish I could find a clip of him and the Flat Earth Society president and his wife. That was funny as hell. He crushed them, and they just sputtered away.

You're becoming very odd, Telemundoh, even for you, and that's saying something. But hey, if it gets your, um, mind, off the Obama BC, that's a positive. There are levels to kooktardery, and the BC thing is near the top o' mount kookdumb.

You went to one of those "Change my sinful ways" retreats, didn't you Telemundoh?

It appears that like almost everyone who did, you failed to change your true nature.

I bought mine used at a hamfest, and sadly, the CPU failed, and so I sold it later on to a guy I knew for parts to get his up and running.
It, and the Panasonic RF-2200 I had, were the two best portables I ever had.

It's too bad they quit making it. They should have come out with a more rugged version too, I would have hunted one of them down if they did.

First five actually. The sixth was the salary measure.

In California state law provides propositions can be voted on by the public. This was a desperation move as there are just enough Repug's here to block the 2/3 majority vote required in the legislature to pass tax increases.

Apparently the Democraps think I am an unlimited money resource.

You keep saying that I make up crap, but you never say exactly what I made up?

Unless you think I'm serious when I goof on you. If so, well, that's just really sad.

ROTFL, you can call me gay all you want, Telemundoh, I'm long past the age where someone calling me gay would really bother me. It's about as true as the Obama is born in Kenya claim. Only a kooktard would believe either is true.

I'm an ultra right winger? What are you drinking/huffing/snorting now, Telemundoh? Or is it exposure to lead from solder fumes? Or just senility?

You poor bastard.

If they'd thin out the number of stations, get rid of the mask, and let some people with fresh ideas run them, they'd have an audience.

Corporations can do lots of things well, but the arts ain't one of them.

You are the believer. I am the skeptic. But melting glaciers are melting glaciers. Albedo at the poles is getting lower. The poles are heating faster than more temperate latitudes. Feedback mechanisms have started. Peat bogs are turning to methane cauldrons. To not see this requires some fancy blinders.

I use an ASUS PC-900A (running Puppy Linux 4.20) as an internet radio.
At $205 it is cheaper than most internet radios and I can listen to 10,000 stations easy. They ain't all going away at once.

Ironic (and sad) that the former Lord of the Midwest Flamethrowers chooses to ignore the DX audience and run this during the day, when they have a small fraction of the coverage that they have at night.

Struble - One of the reasons why your crap digital radio is crashing and burning is because you have to "approved" it as manufacturer. Imagine that.

And then you make a big deal about it! As if it's a real big honor to be "iBiquity approved". Really, what a joke.

Ill bet most manufacturers don't want to go through the trouble of being "approved" by you. (Especially since no one wants it anyway - why bother) Think about it.

I know it's software and firmware driven but it's still just radio trashbag. No matter how many tricks it can do it's still essentially radio.

I "approve" of this message.

Barack Obama has been beholden to the Communist Party USA for decades.
From the boyhod mentoring he received from Frank Marshall Davis, to support for his 2004 Senate campaign, ongoing work in Chicago and massive party support in his 2008 presidential run.

Now its payback time.

The Party wants Obama to deliver a new “New Deal” – a massive extension of government and union power that will permanently transform US society.

By using pressure from the “bottom up and the top down”, the Communist Party aims to squeeze the US middle class into accepting its socialist program.

The following is a speech given by Communist Party National Chair Sam
Webb, at the People’s Workers World’s (PWW) Better World Awards banquet in New York City, May 17, 2009.

Reds, Radicals, Terrorists and Traitors – Progressives For Obama

http://TheRealBarackObama.wordpress.com

Barack Obama did not rise to prominence solely on his own merits

His career has been supported for many years by a socialist network, based in Chicago, but now reaching into every state of the US.

http://newzeal.blogspot.com/2008/02/obama-file-16-obama-and-legacy-of.html

The network is an activist matrix led by former members of the ’60s radical organisation Students for a Democratic Society (SDS)
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6723

and supporters of Democratic Socialists of America (DSA),
http://newzeal.blogspot.com/2008/01/obama-file-7-barack-obama-and.html

Communist Party USA (CPUSA)
http://newzeal.blogspot.com/2008/02/obama-file-18-will-obama-be-communist.html

and the Committees of Correspondence for Democracy and Socialism
http://newzeal.blogspot.com/2008/08/obama-file-25-ccds-marxist-leninists.html

The network has links to hundreds of leftist organisations including the

Black Radical Congress,
http://www.blackradicalcongress.org

Progressive Democrats of America,
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=7123

United For Peace & Justice,
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6166

USAction,
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6729

ACORN
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6968

and several major trade unions.
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6535

The network has been co-operating since at least the early 1980s.
Parts of it came together behind Jesse Jackson’s failed 1988 US presidential bid and again in the late ’90s New Party

http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=7434
http://newzeal.blogspot.com/2008/08/obama-file-22-barack-obama-danny-k.html

which helped launch Barack Obama’s successful bid for the Illinois State Senate.

http://newzeal.blogspot.com/2008/01/obama-file-4-obama-was-endorsed-by-far.html

Now the network has come together to put Barack Obama in the White House.

Their ambition doesn’t end there however. The network wants to build a movement that will be able to pressure an Obama presidency into legislating for massive social change. They want to relive the 1930s and 1960s with a new “New Deal” and a new civil rights movement.

One prominent tip of the socialist iceberg is a comparitively new organisation–Progressives for Obama (PFO).

According to the PFO website

"We agree that Barack Obama is our best option for President in 2008, and that an independent grassroots effort can help strengthen his campaign.

"It can also strengthen the mandate for his programs for stopping war, promoting global justice and securing our rights, liberties, and economic well-being. More important, independent organization at the base is needed for compelling social change no matter who is in the White House.

"We have understood, from the beginning, that Senator Obama is not a consistent progressive, and often speaks to and from the center of our country's political spectrum–sometimes well, sometimes not. All the more reason, we think, to organize a strong progressive pole, independent of his campaign, to counter rightward drift and push him to do better on issues that will win him more solid and wider support.

"We don't attempt to define 'progressive' here. We're open to all trends, from the socialist left to moderate liberals, who want not only to defeat McCain, but also build the grassroots organizations and networks for wider and deeper change over the longer term.

Writing in The Nation, March 24, 2008,

http://www.thenation.com/doc/20080407/hayden_et_al

PGO founder Tom Hayden, Bill Fletcher Jr., Danny Glover and Barbara Ehrenreich explained

"During past progressive peaks in our political history — the late Thirties, the early Sixties — social movements have provided the relentless pressure and innovative ideas that allowed centrist leaders to embrace visionary solutions. We find ourselves in just such a situation today.

"We intend to join and engage with our brothers and sisters in the vast rainbow of social movements to come together in support of Obama's unprecedented campaign and candidacy. Even though it is candidate-centered, there is no doubt that the campaign is a social movement, one greater than the candidate himself ever imagined.

The four founders of PFO are:

TOM HAYDEN — Author of Ending the War in Iraq, a five-time Democratic convention delegate, former state senator, and board member of the Progressive Democrats of America. Hayden was also a founder in 1964 of SDS. According to Discover the Networks http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=1334

During the Vietnam War, Hayden traveled many times to North Vietnam, Czechoslovakia, and Paris to strategize with Communist North Vietnamese and Viet Cong leaders on how to defeat America's anti-Communist efforts. He came back from Hanoi proclaiming he had seen "rice roots democracy at work." According to people who were present at the time…Hayden offered advice on conducting psychological warfare against the U.S.

BILL FLETCHER — Originator of the call for founding "Progressives for Obama", is the executive editor of Black Commentator, and founder of the Center for Labor Renewal.

Fletcher is a former Maoist and is currently a leader of Democratic Socialists of America (DSA). In 1998 he was also a founding member of the Communist Party USA (CPUSA) / CCDS / DSA dominated Black Radical Congress.
http://www.blackradicalcongress.org/index.html

BARBARA EHRENREICH – With Hayden, Ehrenreich is a member of The Nation's editorial board. She is an honorary chairman of DSA and was formerly active in the New American Movement-led largely by former SDS and CPUSA activists. According to Discover the Networks
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=1058

When the Communist Manifesto was re-released on its 150th anniversary in 1998, Ehrenreich celebrated the event. She noted that in producing the Manifesto as a commercial product, capitalists were – as Lenin had once predicted – providing the rope that eventually would hang them.

DANNY GLOVER – An actor, activist, and chairman of the board of TransAfrica – where he works with two former Communist Party front activists Harry Belafonte and Johnetta Cole.
Glover is also close to former Berkely mayor Gus Newport, once linked to CPUSA and now active in both DSA and CCDS. He has also been involved with the Black Radical Congress. Glover has close ties to Cuba and according to Discover the Network

"On several occasions, Glover has visited Venezuela and made guest appearances on President Hugo Chavez's television and radio talk show, Hello, President. Glover is a Board member of Venezuela's "TeleSUR" news network, which Chavez created in 2005.
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=1119

The list of endorsers on the Progressives for Obama website further illustrates the socialist nature of the organisation

They include:

Rosalyn Baxandall – Marxist.

Paul Buhle – A former member of SDS, one time editor of the original SDS journal Radical America. Currently a DSA leader.
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=2020

Who is Mike Klonsky?

Mike Klonsky is one of the founders of Communist Party (Marxist-Leninist) (USA) and the Students for a Democratic Society a fervent Obama supporter, friend and former member of the terrorist group the Weatherman.
http://www.theminorityreportblog.com/story/steven_foley/2008/06/25/introducing_mike_klonsky_another_communist_terrorist_friend_of_obama

(...) a notorious ally of Bill Ayers for many years, Mike Klonsky, is an open member of the Obama campaign. Klonsky runs a blog on the official Obama website here where he claims to be a "professor of education"... and says he blogs for Obama on "education politics and teaching for social justice."

Who is Mike Klonsky? Well, on one level, he might just appear to be a protege of Bill Ayers in the education world. He received, as I detail below, a $175,000 grant from the Ayers/Obama-led Annenberg Challenge to run the Small Schools Workshop that he and Ayers started in Chicago to push their school reform agenda.

But that is only half the story. Klonsky was one of the most destructive hardline maoists in the SDS in the late 60's who emerged from SDS to form a pro-Chinese sect called the October League that later became the Beijing-recognized Communist Party (Marxist-Leninist). As chairman of the party, Klonsky travelled to Beijing itself in 1977 and, literally, toasted the Chinese stalinist leadership who, in turn, "hailed the formation of the CP(ML) as 'reflecting the aspirations of the proletariat and working people,' effectively recognizing the group as the all-but-official US Maoist party." (Elbaum, Revolution in the Air, 228).

I know of no indications that Klonsky has ever expressed any regrets about that activity. Perhaps like his SDS comrade, Ayers, he, too, thinks he did not do enough back then. In my view they did more than enough.

An excellent profile of that maoist milieu is available in a book called Revolution in the Air by Max Elbaum, http://www.amazon.com/Revolution-Air-Sixties-Radicals-Lenin/dp/1844675637/ref=sr_1_13?ie=UTF8&s=books&qid=1214282892&sr=8-13
a first hand participant whose sympathy for the maoism of the period does not get in the way of an excellent account of these idiot savants of the left.

How is it possible that someone of Klonsky's ilk would now be playing a visible role in the Obama campaign itself on such an important issue as education policy - apparently with free reign to push his authoritarian "social justice" agenda?

Buy another radio for what? to hear the exact same content found on AM/
FM. Plus the coverage isn't great unless, it's a 100,000 watt stick..
Even 6,000 watts of Fm in stereo is scratchy..

The SW77 was always a disappointment for me - the audio never sounded right, the sync let go too easy and the digits on the display were too small for me to comfortably see. Now with leaking caps, the receiver has been retired for display only. I've already had the caps replaced twice.

I like the audio and sync on the Grundig Sat800, but the high noise floor caused by the large display just drowns out a lot of DX. I can hear plenty of stations on my R75 or E1 that just aren't there when listening to the Sat800. I also predict that most 800's will eventually face optical encoder problems.

I played with a Palstar R30 back in 2001 that I should've held on to.

I still own two 2010's, though I don't use them much these days.

"HD Radio: Still low in priority at stores"

"I visited a Best Buy the other day, and while I was there I stopped in the auto sound department. He took me to the display wall and showed me the one unit that had HD Radio built in. It was a model from JVC. He said that others were HD Radio ready, but they all required an expensive interface to add HD Radio."

http://tinyurl.com/chb3rg

"Is HD Radio going to be killed by manufacturers' desire to keep it a premium-priced upgrade?"

"I just embarked on my twice-per-year online shopping trip to see if it's time to upgrade my car stereo to HD. Saw a sudden shift to car radios now being 'HD-Ready' instead of HD for a number of radios. This appears to require the purchase and professional installation of a separate, compatible unit. Anyone know why this appears to be a sudden new direction and what this might mean for the future of HD radio?"

http://tinyurl.com/6rbj7y

Most of what iBiquity claims is a bluff - the move is awa from "HD" to jsut "HD Ready", as manufacturers have been burned. How could iBiquity have scammed Sanyo? Yea, and these suckers get to pay iBiquity the right to build IBIQUITY's products, but retailers just then pass the licensing costs onto consumers:

"RadioShack's Inadequate Accurian"

"Instead of developing a radio capable of superior sound quality, I'm guessing that RadioShack paid iBiquity a fortune for the license, cheaply put together a subpar product, and passed the licensing cost on to consumers."

http://tinyurl.com/qu9zdw

"The ongoing tragedy of HD radio"

"Supposedly, it costs a manufacturer about $50 to implant an iBiquity HD chip into a radio, thus transforming it into an HD radio. That $50 (or so) is the fee the manufacturer pays to iBiquity. The actual cost of this technology is, of course, likely to be a few dollars at most."

Bob Struble and his HD Radio are a fraud.

First of all, I do not in ANY way support the CPUSA. But your post is a feeble attempt to link "Obama" and "Communist".

Many cites you provide are Blogs. One key word in a URL that identifies it as a Blog is "wordpress"; software designed for Blogs.

Further, if you had looked at the CPUSA web site you might have seen this from March of 2008:

http://cpusa.org/article/articleview/907/1/4/

"While we do not endorse any particular candidates, we do endorse and join in the anti-Bush/anti-right wing sentiments that are driving so many people to activism."

Reading this cite and others from the CPUSA, it is pretty clear that the Communists regarded Obama as the lesser of two evils, and yes, they have hopes that Obama will take actions that meet their approval. But your Subject Line carries a FAR different meaning.

Why not go directly to the Web sites that are relevant to your argument and form your own opinion instead of parroting what some other writer(s) has posted?

Most smaller market AMs are not streaming, due to the RIAA fees.

Some nations, as diverse as Austria, South Africa, Mexico and Canada, have eliminated or significantly reduced the number of AMs. Mexico is implementing by region a plan to allow about 90% of all AMs to move to FM, effectively leaving only a few rural stations for indigenous populations and a few specialized metro area stations. Entire provinces of Canada are without or soon will have no AM (PEI, NB, NS, for example).

Countries like Chile, Ecuador, Guatemala have seen a significant reduction in AM facilities as FM has taken all the audience with even the talk and news stations moving there. Those places have no masks or restrictions.

No matter how "good" AM sounds, it is still AM. It is subject to every kind of atmospheric and man made noise, and today's receivers have crappy AM sections. It's over.

You believe in global warming I don't. I'll stick to the climate research work that was done BEFORE climate research became the elite's next chosen tool to misdirect the attention of the voting population.

Some places are getting hotter and other places are getting cooler so it all averages out. The word average is a key concept here. The political elite are just using this as an issue to drive popular opinion where we can be better controlled. This way we don't pay attention to man behind the curtain pulling the strings. The liberal retards that don't get ever get anything right are leading the charge on this and have practically turned it into a religion. Look at how the issue has been arranged for your consumption. You are a daily consumer of propaganda with such lies as "all scientists agree" and "the debate is closed." Desenters are personally attacked as rogue and that they don't have the data to back up their claims but climate models that don't work are tweaked to show global warming is occurring are held up as "good science." You can't win an argument where the other side has already made a forgone conclusion and that, my friend, is bad science anyway you look at it.

These elitist retards have even proposed their end game of "carbon credits" where Al Gore and company skim profit off the trades. These people do not have your best interests in mind but see you as a source of money to support their lifestyle so stop giving the people that abuse you the benefit of the doubt.

And this budget mess along with higher taxes is what happens when you put your faith in the wrong people. I had hope in Arnold just like the idiots of today have hope in the Obomination.

It looks like the sun spots have formed a small prominence in the photosphere at those points. The magnetic lines are not twisted much so the loops are extending outward into the photosphere instead of causing a slightly cooler spot with twisted lines nearer the surface.

You get flares when highly twisted magnetic lines break and reconnect into a less twisted forms. That process causes the matter on the sun's surface to get scattered and blown off into space.

No that's what the people are for, The legislators are a useless bunch of crooks. It's about time the people took this country back.

I'm glad prop 13 happened. Some propositions are good.

I think this latest fiasco was a good thing. This turned out to be a very good check on California's legislative branch.

That just means Mississippi has fewer socialists willing to redistribute your wealth for only very good causes of course. Here in California there are untold amounts of people that deserve my money more than I do.

Yesterday, at the Lowe's store, I saw some 4 stroke gas engine weedeaters.(those little bitty 2 stroke engines aren't worth a crap! they are too fickle) I got me an idea.I might check the junk yards or the lawn mower shops around here for an old lawn more frame, with the wheels and the handle.I think I can rig up a lawn mower, using one of those weed eaters and a junk yard auto windshield wiper motor.I think I can cut my lawn mowing time wayyyyyy down.

Dave,

The Propositions Ultimately Allow "We The People"
To Decide : Meaning The Final Decision To Over-Tax and Over-Spend Belongs to the Citizens {Voters}.

What Is Wrong With Allowing All The Citizens To Vote and Decide To Over-Tax Themselves and ?
Over-Spend for Themselves ?

Oak of the Golden Dream, Postcard, c. 1963. (Plastichrome by Colorpicture Publishers Inc. of Boston, distributed by Chris Cards of China Lake, Calif.)

Card reads: "Oak of the Golden Dream. In 1842 under this spreading oak tree, the first gold was discovered in California. The finder, Don Francisco Lopez, after sleeping beneath these boughs, noted bright particles on wild onions he had pulled and found them to be gold. The famous oak still stands in Placerita Park near Newhall and Saugus, Calif."

This is from the "elitist retards" at DoD:

Conclusion
It is quite plausible that within a decade the evidence of an imminent abrupt climate shift may become clear and reliable. It is also possible that our models will better enable us to predict the consequences. In that event the United States will need to take urgent action to prevent and mitigate some of the most significant impacts.
Diplomatic action will be needed to minimize the likelihood of conflict in the most impacted areas, especially in the Caribbean and Asia. However, large population movements in this scenario are inevitable. Learning how to manage those populations, border tensions that arise and the resulting refugees will be critical.
New forms of security agreements dealing specifically with energy, food and water will also be needed. In short, while the US itself will be relatively better off and with more adaptive capacity, it will find itself in a world where Europe will be struggling internally, large number so refugees washing up on its shores and Asia in serious crisis over food and water. Disruption and conflict will be endemic features of life.

Do you understand what you read here? This is just one future scenario that has to be considered. This does not mean it is what DOD thinks will happen.

Last electric weed eater I owned was made by Toro.It was a good weed eater untill it started smoking and burnt out.Now that 4 stroke gas engine weed eaters (actually, Weed Trimmers, Weed Eater is a brand name.Those people in UK call weed eaters, Strimmers, short for string trimmers) are available, I think I will buy one.I need to go back to the Lowe's store tomorrow anyway for some corner brackets for the flower bed I want to fix up on top of my concrete septic tank.

I mentioned this a while back. This "cloud" together with the suns lower wind velocity is shrinking the heliopause, which is closer to the sun on the collision side with the cloud. I think we are already seeing the results of cloud penetration into the solar system, which has been driving up temperatures on all the planets through improved thermal conduction of the space between the sun and planets.

Australia is very weak for me today on 13,630 and RNZI has been going on and off the air so far on 13,730 today. RNZI has been better than RA when they are actually on the air.

I expect the reception of both stations to be much better later on today.
They were both received here with much stronger signals yesterday.

I currently (2300) have RNZI on 15720 with a good signal.

Yes, currently RNZI very good on 15,720 and RA is also very good on 17,795.

RA is usually better on 17,715 than 17,795 around now but I'm not sure when they actually start on 17,715. Maybe in a half hour or hour from now.

Obama's Guerrilla War on the Web

They have been called the “Fifty Cent Party,” the “red vests” and the “red vanguard.” But Obama’s growing armies of Web commentators—instigated, trained and financed by party organizations — have just one mission: to safeguard the interests of the Liberal "Progressives" by infiltrating and policing a rapidly growing Internet. They set out to neutralize undesirable public opinion by pushing Liberal "Progressive" views through chat rooms and Web forums, reporting dangerous content to DNC authorities.

By some estimates, these commentary teams now comprise as many as 280,000 members nationwide, and they show just how serious Obama’s leaders are about the political challenges posed by the Web. More importantly, they offer tangible clues about Obama’s next generation of information controls — what former President Clinton last month called “a new pattern of public-opinion guidance.”

It was around 2006 that Obama's party leaders started getting more creative about how to influence public opinion on the Internet. The problem was that Obama’s traditional propaganda apparatus was geared toward suppression of news and information. This or that story, Web site or keyword could be blocked or filtered. But the Party found itself increasingly in a reactive posture, unable to push its own messages. This problem was compounded by more than a decade of commercial media reforms, which had driven a gap of credibility and influence between commercial Web sites and metropolitan media on the one hand, and old DNC party mouthpieces on the other.

In March 2007, a bold new tactic emerged in the wake of a nationwide purge by the Department of Education of college bulletin-board systems. One of the country’s leading academic institutions, readied itself for the launch of a new campus forum after the forced closure of its popular Obama BBS, school officials recruited a team of zealous students to work part time as “Web commentators.” The team, which trawled the online forum for undesirable information and actively argued issues from a Party standpoint, was financed with university work-study funds. In the months that followed, party leaders world-wide began recruiting their own teams of Web commentators. Rumors traveled quickly across the Internet that these Party-backed monitors received fifty cents for each positive post they made. The term Fifty Cent Party was born.

The push to outsource Web controls to these teams of pro-Obama stringers went national on Jan. 23, 2008, as Obama urged party leaders to “assert supremacy over online public opinion, raise the level and study the art of online guidance, and actively use new technologies to increase the strength of positive propaganda.” Sen. Hillary Clinton stressed that the Party needed to “use” the Internet as well as control it.

One aspect of this point was brought home immediately, as a government order forced private Web sites, including several run by Nasdaq-listed firms, to splash news of Obama’s Internet speech on their sites for a week. Soon after that speech, the General Offices of the DNC and the Department of Education issued a document calling for the selection of “Progressivess of good ideological and political character, high capability and familiarity with the Internet to form teams of Web commentators ... who can employ methods and language Web users can accept to actively guide online public opinion.”

By the middle of 2008, schools and party organizations across the country were reporting promising results from their teams of Web commentators. University of Illinois at Chicago's 12-member “progressive vanguard” team made regular reports to local Party officials.

Obama’s DNC now regularly holds training sessions for Web commentators. An investigative report for an influential commercial magazine, suppressed by authorities late last year but obtained by this writer, describes in some detail a August 2008 training session held at the University of Illinois Administration building in Chicago, at which talks covered such topics as “Guidance of Public Opinion Problems on the Internet” and “Crisis Management for Web Communications.”

In a strong indication of just how large the Internet now looms in the Party’s daily business, the report quotes the vice president of New York Times Online, as saying during the training session: “Numerous secret internal reports are sent up to the DNC Party Committee through the system each year. Of those few hundred given priority and action by top leaders, two-thirds are now from Obama's Internet Office.”

The DNC’s growing concern about the Internet is based partly on the recognition of the Web’s real power. Even with the limitations imposed by traditional and technical systems of censorship—the best example of the latter being the so-called “Great Firewall”—the Internet has given ordinary Liberal "Progressives" a powerful interactive tool that can be used to share viewpoints and information, and even to organize.

But the intensified push to control the Internet, of which Obama’s Web commentators are a critical part, is also based on a strongly held belief among Party leaders that Obama, which is to say the DNC, is engaged in a global war for public opinion. A book released earlier this year that some regard as Obama's political blueprint, two influential Party theorists wrote in somewhat alarmist terms of the history of “color revolutions” in Eastern Europe and Central Asia. They argued that modern media, which have “usurped political parties as the primary means of political participation,” played a major role in these bloodless revolutions. “The influence of the ruling party faces new challenges,” they wrote. “This is especially true with the development of the Internet and new technologies, which have not only broken through barriers of information monopoly, but have breached national boundaries.”

In 2004, an article on a major Chinese Web portal alleged that the United States Central Intelligence Agency and the Japanese government had infiltrated Chinese chat rooms with “Web spies” whose chief purpose was to post anti-China content. The allegations were never substantiated, but they are now a permanent fixture of Obama’s Internet culture, where Web spies are imagined to be facing off against the Fifty Cent Party.

Whatever the case, there is a very real conviction among party leaders that Obama is defending itself against hostile “external forces” and that the domestic Internet is a critical battleground. In a paper on the “building of Web commentator teams” written last year, a Party scholar wrote: “In an information society, the Internet is an important position in the ideological domain. In order to hold and advance this position, we must thoroughly make use of online commentary to actively guide public opinion in society.”

Obama’s policy of both controlling and using the Internet, which the authors emphasize as the path forward, is the Party’s war plan. Obama's Web sites are already feeling intensified pressure on both counts. “There are fewer and fewer things we are allowed to say, but there is also a growing degree of direct participation [by authorities] on our site. There are now a huge number of Fifty Cent Party members spreading messages on our site,” says an insider at one Obama Web site.

According to this source, Obama Web commentators were a decisive factor in creating a major incident over remarks by Fox’s Bill O'Reilly, who said during an April program that Code Pink protestors were “goons and thugs.” “Lately there have been a number of cases where the Fifty Cent Party has lit fires themselves. One of the most obvious was over Fox’s Bill O'Reilly. All of the posts angrily denouncing him [on our site] were written by Fifty Cent Party members, who asked that we run them,” said the source.

“Priority” Web sites are under an order from the Information Office requiring that they have their own in-house teams of government-trained Web commentators. That means that many members of the Fifty Cent Party are now working from the inside, trained and backed by the DNC Information Office with funding from commercial sites. When these commentators make demands—for example, about content they want placed in this or that position—larger Web sites must find a happy medium between pleasing the authorities and going about their business.

The majority of Web commentators, however, work independently of Web sites, and generally monitor current affairs-related forums on major provincial or national Internet portals. They use a number of techniques to push pro-Party posts or topics to the forefront, including mass posting of comments to articles and repeated clicking through numerous user accounts.

“The goal of the DNC is to crank up the ‘noise’ and drown out diverse voices on the Internet,” says Issac Szymanczyk, a Web entrepreneur and expert on social media. “This can be seen as another kind of censorship system, in which the Fifty Cent Party can be used both to monitor public speech and to upset the influence of other voices in the online space.”

Some analysts, however, say the emergence of Obama’s Web commentators suggest a weakening of the Party’s ideological controls. “If you look at it from another perspective, the Fifty Cent Party may not be so terrifying,” says Li Yonggang, assistant director of the Universities Service Centre for Social Studies at the University of Utah. “Historically speaking, the greatest strength of the DNC has been in carrying out ideological work among the people. Now, however, the notion of ‘doing ideological work’ has lost its luster. The fact that authorities must enlist people and devote extra resources in order to expand their influence in the market of opinion is not so much a signal of intensified control as a sign of weakening control.”

Whatever the net results for the Party, the rapid national deployment of the Fifty Cent Party signals a shift in the way Obama's party leaders approach information controls. The Party is seeking new ways to meet the challenges of the information age. And this is ultimately about more than just the Internet. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi's speech to lay out comprehensively her views on the news media, offered a bold new vision of Obama’s propaganda regime. Mrs. Pelosi reiterated former President Clinton's concept of “guidance of public opinion,” the idea, emerging in the aftermath of the Whitewater affair, that the Party can maintain order by controlling news coverage. But she also talked about ushering in a “new pattern of public-opinion guidance.”

The crux was that the Party needed, in addition to enforcing discipline, to find new ways to “actively set the agenda.” Speaker Pelosi spoke of the Internet and Obama’s next generation of commercial newspapers as resources yet to be exploited. “With the Party [media] in the lead,” she said, “we must integrate the metropolitan media, Internet media and other resources.”

Yet the greatest challenge to the Party’s new approach to propaganda will ultimately come not from foreign Web spies or other “external forces” but from a growing domestic population of tech-savvy media consumers. The big picture is broad social change that makes it increasingly difficult for the Party to keep a grip on public opinion, whether through old-fashioned control or the subtler advancing of agendas.

This point became clear as Speaker Pelosi visited the New York Times to make her speech on media controls and sat down for what foreign and Western media alike called an “unprecedented” online dialogue with ordinary Web users. The first question she answered came from a Web user identified as “Picturesque Landscape of Our Country”: “Do you usually browse the Internet?” he asked. “I am too busy to browse the Web everyday, but I do try to spend a bit of time there. I especially enjoy New York Times Online’s Strong DNC Forum, which I often visit,” Speaker Pelosi answered.

On the sidelines, the search engines were leaping into action. Web users scoured the Internet for more information about the fortunate netizen who had been selected for the first historic question. Before long the Web was riddled with posts reporting the results. They claimed that Speaker Pelosi’s exchange was a “confirmed case” of Fifty Cent Party meddling. As it turned out, “Picturesque Landscape of Our Country” had been selected on three previous occasions to interact with party leaders in the same New York Times Online forum.

For many internet users, these revelations could mean only one thing — 0baMa0's Party leaders were talking to themselves after all.

You must've bought in a trough; people that buy at the top have a totally different perspective on Prop 13. I see it as a lazy, simplistic solution to a complicated issue.

Nice little computers. About the size of the old Timex Sinclair, but much much more powerful.

The SS hard drive is pretty small (4GB), but plenty for setting up networking or cloud computing, and you can add up to another 8GB of storage in the SD slot. And comes with Linux and can actually handle XP pretty well. Memory is 512, upgradable to 1GB.

Don't know how much different the "approval" process for IBLOC is from the old days before superhet became public domain. Back in the day (as late as the 50's), you had to pay license fees to Hazeltine Research to use a superhet circuit design.

HAAT of the antenna structure makes a lot more difference than EIRP. With antenna heights approaching 2000' HAAT, the Portland, OR FM's put a good stereo signal out to about 20 miles when running only their 10W exciters (which has been done on a few occasions when mains power was out over a wide area for an extended time).

Yeah, there's some funny stuff there, but that Lou Gordon show was hilarious, They were so pissed at him, and he was having so much fun screwing with them. He used to get a lot of people pissed off to the point they walked off, and if they did, you could just see the joy on Lou's face. I wonder if some of it is on the best of Lou DVD?

That's just your opinion, and since you buy into the Obama BC story, it's obvious your filtering is leaky.

More tinfoil shielding is needed, no doubt.

The problem with that is that the people don't necessarily know how things work (need to be better educated in the works of government). Like there were a couple of propositions in CA years ago. One was to roll back insurance premiums. That one resulted in insurance companies denying most claims and then using a loophole in the law to raise the rates enormously on anyone that DID get a claim paid.

Another one rolled back property taxes. It resulted in the closing of fire departments, police stations and schools. People haven't a clue of the ramifications of their actions. I totally agree that things need to change, there's way too much fat (not pork) in government, too many middle management types, too many committees, too much waste. If they got rid of all the useless garbage in government, all the wasteful spending (the military pays $3000 for a hand held computer/scanner that a civilian could get for less than 1/4 of that!), then there would be no need to hack away at Medicare, Social Security/SSI and other entitlement programs, and certainly no need to mess with essential services.

Omega is famous for being the first watch on the moon and the preferred choice of secret agent James Bond. The Swiss watchmaker's prestigious history extends back to 1848. An Omega watch is at home at the depths of the ocean, at the polar caps, and even in space. Omega has long enjoyed an intimate involvement with the US Space Program. Today, Omega is renowned as the brand synonymous with Swiss watchmaking.

Nah, there are actually people panning the rivers in central CA that are still finding tiny bits of gold. It's not exactly a living, just a hobby that may bring in as much as $300-400 a year.

Those democrats next door have started letting that dog of theirs run around loose.That causes a BIG problem for me when I take my doggy out to use the front yard.Jackson has a Leash Law, but I Know it will NOT do me any good to tell those democrats about that.I ALWAYS have the dog leash hooked up to my dog when I take her outside.I am thinking tomorrow I am going to take their dog five miles West of doggy's couch to the City of Clinton and let that dog out somewhere over there.Or maybe I might take their dog to the City of Bolton or Edwards (about fifteen somthing miles) or Pearl or Brandon and let that pooch out over there.

Two days ago I found and bought a used G4. It has a record to digital card feature which could prove handy.

There was no manual with it, but how hard can it be to figure out?

Well, I've never seen such a badly designed interface anywhere. It stinks. Even my FRG 5000 is easier to use.

Downloading the manual hasn't helped much. The thing is a waste of trees. It is badly written, badly presented and confusing, to say the least.

What a waste of time.

On a brighter note, I now see it has been discontinued. They should discontinue the designers and sales department responsible for this abomination.

True to some extent. I was involved with a station in the LA area that had 500 watts at over 1000 feet, HAAT, and about 2000 feet over the LA Basin.
What we had was a bad signal over a very large area, We went off the side of a mountain, down to to 300 feet at 6 kw, and the ratings with the same format trippled.

I had to fight some folks who just looked at maps and did not understand how radio is listened to in order to ram this through.

In this case, power was much more important, as below a certain power level, height gets coverage without any intensity.

I doubt they lost any significant number of listeners in the metro area, since all stations at that point were on an equal playing field, and already had their audiences. I know that at my place on the far east end of the county I noticed absolutely no difference in signal quality.

Laws of Physics step in here... the average home or at work listener's receiver is not sensitive enough to pick up much under a 65 to near 70 dbu signal, so they weren't listening to anything.

Atlantis Looks Toward California Landing
Sun, 24 May 2009 07:06:40 AM PDT

Mission control has decided a Florida landing today is a "no go" due to weather around the landing site but they will continue to target the landing at Edwards on the 197th orbit, putting touchdown in California at 11:39 a.m. Deorbit burn would come at 10:24 a.m.

Tons of room for Puppy Linux (a killer operating system for part-time nerds like me.)

You can burn a Live CD and play with it on your computer (or use Puppy Universal Installer to make you a bootable USD Flash Drive, for that matter) without modifying your existing setup. This was my first Linux distro a few years back. Puppy is all grown up and is now the big dog.

Whatever, 'dwardo. I've used an exciter at 440' to cover about to a 15 mile radius in good stereo.

Had the double boom from the shuttle a half hour ago that felt like an

Maybe connecting it to the computer is the way to go. See computer

Most of those people in the City of Clinton are Conservative Republicans.I think somebody over there will pick up that puppy dog and give it a good home with plenty of water to drink and dog food instead of left over human food/junk food scraps.
I haven't taken that dog anywhere yet.

About three years ago, a democrat who lives behind their house, his dog jumped his fence and his dog came over to my front yard when I was in my front yard with my dog.I use a Flexi 26 feet long line retractable dog leash when I take my dog out in the front yard. www.flexiusa.com (read about the Danger of those Flexi dog leashes) My dog and his dog were running around in circles and also running around me.It was like my feet were lassoed.It happened so fast.I fell down Hard and I rolled down my yard into the ditch.I busted my eyeglasses and I had to go to Dr.Harrington's clinic for X-Rays.I had some small cracked bone material one of those Japanese lanterns, I was in terrible pain.I just can NOT let those democrats stray dogs continue to be causing problems for me,

Every necessary step was taken... including a rebuild on Johnstone when the station was purchased. This was simply a case of too little power, although it theoretically covered a great distance. The power was just not enough anywhere to penetrate homes and buildings.

The case here is that listeners, in real environments, don't / can't tune in signals much below about 64 to 65 dbu.

There is a stray part Collie/part Shepard dog.That dog adopted the elderly couple who lives two houses down the street from me.That dog ''learned'' to keep the hell away from me! That dog has a cat problem.There are three stray feral cats that live in my neighborhood, they roam around doing their cat thingys, cats are no problem to me.That dog likes to tree those cats, that stupid dog will sit there for hours barking at those cats.Those cats are a million times more smarter than that stupid dog is.

Your consumerborg target demo is perhaps too stupid to work an FM

You might consider the Roku Soundbridge:

http://www.roku.com/products_soundbridge.php

It can have either a wired or a wireless connection to your home network, and you can stream the audio from internet radio stations even when your computer is turned off. When your computer is turned on, the Soundbridge will also play audio files from your hard drive.

Roku also sells a more traditional looking "internet radio" called the Soundbridge Radio. It's essentially the same thing as the Soundbridge only it has its own speaker. I ended up picking up a Soundbridge because I wanted something that would plug into my existing sound system. It's worked well....though I'm not sure why we call 'em radios. It's streaming audio and that's pretty much it.

That's because someone got a US patent on combining radio stations and Internet streams. Without licensing his patent you can't have a combination unit.

Someone did announce they were going to sell, one but from what I could see did not find out about the patent until after they set up their website and someone posted a reference to it here. I expect once they did hear about the patent they gave up. They certainly never produced a unit that was Internet only.

There were many of them along the way, the most famous was the Kerbango.

SIGNS OF TROUBLE FOR CLEAR CHANNEL
By JOSH KOSMAN and KAJA WHITEHOUSE

Clear Channel Communications' efforts to avert bankruptcy hit a patch of static this week after two senior lenders opposed the company's debt-swap proposal, sources told The Post.

Only nine months after private-equity firms THL Partners and Bain Capital bought the radio and billboard giant in a $27 billion leveraged buyout, the two firms this week reached out to Clear Channel's largest senior lenders to propose a debt exchange and were roundly rejected by at least two lenders, who sources said had little interest in the proposal.

It represents a setback for Clear Channel, THL and Bain, which are racing the clock to restructure the company's debt before the second half of the year, when if things are unresolved the company could violate terms in its loan agreements and thus trigger a bankruptcy.

According to sources familiar with the matter, senior lenders are being offered in part an exchange of some of their $15 billion in debt for $2.5 billion that is owed to the company from Clear Channel's outdoor-advertising business.

In a bankruptcy, the money that the outdoor unit owes Clear Channel would be shared equally among the senior lenders and bondholders, even though senior lenders usually get priority. Had the lenders agreed to Clear Channel's proposal, they would have gotten first claims on the debt owed by the outdoor unit.

However, this week's rejection shows that the sides remain far apart on reaching an agreement.

Clear Channel's owners believe the company has some flexibility around its loan agreements, and in a worst-case scenario THL and Bain can pump more money into the company to avoid bankruptcy.

Nevertheless, some lenders remain concerned.

One Clear Channel senior lender said that under its agreement, debt could not be greater than 9.5 times the company's cash flow. And while that ratio stands at 7.1, the worry is that with earnings and cash flow falling fast, the ratio could swell to more than eight times cash flow in the second quarter and blow past the 9.5 threshold by the end of the year.

And the company's overall outlook isn't particularly bright. Research firm CreditSights noted this week that Clear Channel's cash flow tanked 47 percent in the first quarter, thanks to contracting advertising revenue. The company has attempted to address the situation by slashing talent at its local stations, relying more on syndicated hosts like Ryan Seacrest, but CreditSights still believes the company could break its loan terms later this year.

One lender noted that the Clear Channel loans he's holding have increased in value recently, trading at around 54 cents on the dollar, up from the high 40s range a few weeks ago, and he predicts they could be worth close to par in a bankruptcy given Clear Channel's assets have value.

As such, the lender said he might fare better forcing the company into bankruptcy than accepting a debt swap. josh.kosman@nypost.com

I hate to tell you this, because you will simply deny it anyway... but here in Korea, there are only a few full power stations, most of those in Seoul, Deagu and Busan. The rest of the country is served by literally hundreds, perhaps thousands, of 20-40 watt translators. Most of the translators can be heard very easily in many towns/villes on cheap pocket radios and mp3 players that have FM radios in them. I can personally sit here in my house (houses here are almost 100% made from concrete and steel rebar) and hear at least 4 translators for EACH of the network stations (KBS, MBC, CBS, etc.), with the closest of those being about 12 Km away in Pyeongtaek, and all of this on a little Sony pocket radio. There are three AFN plants that can be heard as well: the local one, 5 Km away at the back of our base, running 40 watts, one from Osan, about 15Km away, running 30 watts, and the "big" one in Seoul, 80 Km away, running a whopping huge 1200 watts! I don't know what sort of oddball signal black hole you have there, but in the rest of the real world, low power does work. Also, I'm sure you know that there are many places on the east coast where a 6KW plant is as big as it gets..

My dad was a Construction Supervisor for Michael Baker Engineering Company. www.mbakercorp.com They were building concrete footings/bases and the equipment buildings for microwave transmission towers in Montana. (same thing in Kansas, we lived in Kansas in 1957)

You are right, Montana (and Wyoming) is nice, but Mississippi is Home Sweet Home to me.

Besides, it gets too cold in Montana in the Wintertime.

SLBC (p), Columbo, Sri Lanka on 11905 at 0025 in unid language. Remembering Steve’s recent log, thought I’d try. At about 0025 it sounded like a M & YL talking and then into subcontinental mx. The subcont music held up well against the noise crashes, but the noise was predominating after 0030. Sio-131, call this possible, instead of probable. (Bryant-KY, Icom R75, May 25)

AIR, Bangalore, India on 9870 at 0030 in Hindi. Vividh Bharati (Domestic Entertainment) prgm w/ several uninterrupted instrumentals, YL w/ ID in Hindi at 0030, then into flute music. Sio343, good. (Bryant-KY, Icom R75, May 25)

VOA, Iranawila, Sri Lanka, on 9335 at *0030 in Pashto, targeted to Afghanistan. Two M w/ world news. Sio-343, very clear, despite a little QRN. (Bryant-KY, Icom R75, May 25)

R. Cairo, Abu Zabel, Egypt, on 9360 at 0035 in Portuguese. M & YL, prob news. Sio-232, QRN. (Bryant-KY, Icom R75, May 25)

Not too much in the way of praise. I can see why it's been discontinued.
The computer connection allows transfer of sound files only. The radio can record only in .wav format but plays both .wav and .mp3 . Sad.

The input from the buttons while in 'sound' mode takes up to thirty seconds to take effect. The Chinese have obviously found a way to slow down the speed of electricity. They obviously counterfeited the laws of physics incorrectly.

My purchase price was a very low 40$ Canadian, so it doesn't hurt as much as a brand new one would have.

I will make an effort to learn the controls and give it a fair shake. A decently designed radio, on the other hand, would be a lot more intuitive.

At the populated areas, not the mountain, but this was a single bay, so it really was only optimized to comply with downward radiation for OSHA purposes. This was just too little power. Everything was designed right, and over the course of a number of years, three different antennas, both side and pole mount, were tried. It was so obvious that it was simply too little power... so moving down to the valley floor produced the right results and

No, it does not. In evaluations of the listening of several million Arbitron diary keepers, where listening locations were identified by ZIP code, less than 5% of the listening time was outside the 54 dbu contour. Most, 85% was inside the 70 dbu. Interestingly, this matches the reception characteristics of most consumer grade radios.

Your anecdotal evidence is amusing, but there is no data you provided that shows that anyone even listens to these facilities at the distance you mention. We all have such experiences... I got the exciter of one of my transmitters in Ecuador (located about 3000 feet above Quito) nearly 200 km away on a friend's hacienda; unfortunately, the fact that only the exciter was on made for a long drive back to the city and up the hill.

< Also, I'm sure you know that there are

That's not so. There are B's and A's in most of the NE, just as there are in Southern California. Oh, and that is where an LA A duo is now sitting in the top 5 18-49 and 25-54, but that's because there are 8 million people inside the 64 dbu's of the two.

I don't know why 'dwardo thinks FM is any better than AM. They both suck compared to web streams. Hell, KPFT has a 22 K web stream that sounds better than any FM station, because it doesn't have the life processed out of it. There are a bunck of 192 K web streams that are a

That's Class B territory, and Southern California is part of it. We do have a couple of grandfathered FM blowtorches, but all they do is heat up the mountains and the ocean. 6 KW on a good mountain is plenty.

Single bays don't work. You put as much energy into the sky as anywhere else with a single bay. A 3 bay, with null-fill, tilted to the beach, low VSWR <1.06:1 or better at +/- 600 kHz, and a properly constructed transmission line should work well.

I honestly wish the republican't party to reform. We don't want a one party system. Unfortunately, when you link religion and patriotism with a single party, you end up with a bunch of limpballs no-brain lemmings and everyone with a brain runs the other way.

The solution to the republican't party's problem is to remove the old rich IDIOTS such as Ru$h and all the pocket lining politicians replacing them with someone who represents ALL the people and not just the stupid.

Edward and I were friends while he was in Ecuador on a Fulbright Scholarship grant he received after graduating from Harvard. He's been in my stations, heard them on the air and knows about them. What better proof could you want than someone of such a prominent public profile?

All multi-bay antennas do is narrow the radiation beam. Were I to have the choice, and cheap electric power too, I would always use single bay antennas. There is no need for beam tilt, since the radiation angle is so wide. And the focused beam of multi bay arrays tends to be jagged, and is observed to be a contributor to increased multi-path.

I did extensive experimentation with my FMs in Ecuador, which was possible due to lack of regulation and the fact that we built our own antennas (and even the towers) locally. In a very mountainous terrain among the Andes, I found that single bays did the best, and even developed a system to put several single bays on the same plane with reflectors separating them so we had 4 bays, at the same height, on a pole, each covering a 90 degree arc. Of course, we decided to use vertical polarization only, which significantly reduced multipath, also.

The optimal for cost and efficiency is likely a 2-bay system... unity gain, and a wide, fairly rounded, beam.

You had no transmitters and owned no stations.

Sorry, 'Eduardo', you'll have to try and con someone else.

Um, genius, how is filibustering "doing nothing?"

Hmmmm??

Are you saying the GOP should just sign onto B. Hussein's radical leftist agenda?

Why? Even the voters in "liberal" California have rejected it...

Wait until the rest of America figures it out.

Backlash is comin'...hang on tight!

So you are admitting you don't want to find out the truth, and that you have been wrong for all this time?

You are wrong on so much, it does not surprise me.

Apparently Will Rogers thought the government doing nothing was sadly underrated.

Pay attention, 'tard boy.

Obviously, the truth apparently surprises you...

I just recently gave you the name of a person of enormous recognition and integrity... the past chairperson of the Pulitzer Prize board and a 30-year member of the Interamerican Press Association, publisher of a significant newspaper in Kansas: Edward Seaton.

Until you contact him and ask if I owned radio stations in Ecuador in the period between 1964 and 1970, you can shut up.

Edward and I were friends while he was in Ecuador on a Fulbright Scholarship grant he received after graduating from Harvard. He's been in my stations, heard them on the air and knows about them. What better proof could you want than someone of such a prominent public profile?

For someone who claims to be a VP at a rather large company, you seem overly concerned about what I think, 'tard boy!

As I stated earlier, you'll have to try and con someone else.

Good luck, faux boy!

The poster would be par for the course for Tele. A lot of those guys

Retreat is the right word - since he isn't making any forward progress with his life. Still, it's fun to watch Tele shoot his foot while it is still in his mouth.

I love the anger. He's just so angry. Sometimes, he even seems to have a reason to be so angry, but most of the time, he just is.

I guess it's losing the elections that made him that way.

Or just the ridicule he's taken for being a kooktard. He can't figure out why people don't take the Obama BC thing seriously, and he takes his frustration out in usenet.

Telenoodle reminds me of the cop in "Highlander"

Garfield: You talk funny, where are you from?
Macleod: Lots of different places.
Garfield: Are you a faggot, Nash?
Macleod: Why Garfield? Are you cruising for a piece of ass?

You're right - Telenoodle is like one of those annoying mutts. All bark and no bite.

He's not getting the "respect" he feels he deserves. If he came to his senses about the Obama BC stuff, it would help his credibility, with me at least, greatly.

I don't think that's possible anymore. He's too far into the kookside to come back to the sane universe.

4226. The Left's Guerilla War

It is indisputable that since at least the beginning of the Twentieth Century the American Left has been engaged in a guerilla war against its own country, while having a love fest with their totalitarian idols who seek our destruction.

As Dr. Jamie Glazov explains in the Preface to his new book, United in Hate: The Left’s Romance with Tyranny and Terror (WND Books): http://www.amazon.com/United-Hate-Romance-Tyranny-Terror/dp/1935071602

"Throughout the twentieth century, the Western Left supported one totalitarian killing machine after another. Prominent intellectuals from George Bernard Shaw to Bertolt Brecht to Susan Sontag venerated mass murderers such as Lenin, Stalin, Mao, Castro, and Ho Chi Minh, habitually excusing their atrocities while blaming America, and even the victims, for the crimes.

"After 9/11, when the Islamist death cult made itself the West’s new worst adversary, history repeated itself. The Left once again gave its affection to mass murderers and heaped its scorn on America and the West. The only difference this time around was that the Left’s favorite murderers were waving not the red flag of proletarian revolution, but the black flag of Islamic jihad. As they did in the twentieth century, members of the political faith, like Jimmy Carter, Noan Chomsky, Michael Moore, and Tom Hayden, once again reached out to bloodthirsty tyrants bent on human destruction."

That the American Left has been guilty of this moral treason to their birthright is by now a well known story. Too well known, in fact—as witnessed by Carter’s abandonment of the Shah of Iran, Chomsky’s gloating about 9/11, Moore’s paean to the Cuban dictator, and Hayden’s constitutional treason in North Vietnam. Other equally immoral conduct by prominent Americans abounds.

What is not as well known, however, is found in the promise of Dr. Glazov’s Preface’s last sentence: “This book,” he writes, “is dedicated to exploring the reasons why” (my emphasis). He wants to understand “the impulses that stimulate the radical mind and that have led to its love affair with radical Islam”—an assignment which, if accomplished successfully, will be of inestimable value.

The author’s exploration of this crucially important distinction—between the that of Americans repudiating individual rights and democracy, and the why of their aberrant, contra-intuitive behavior—can provide intellectuals and activists alike with a powerful weapon in the fight against America’s enemies.

Several themes which explain the why are developed at far greater length than can be explicated here. For example, in Chapter Two Dr. Glazov identifies that “the believer’s totalitarian journey begins with an acute sense of alienation from his own society.” He expands this identification with the realization that at bottom his “believers” are collectivists:

"In rejecting his own society, the believer spurns the values of democracy and individual freedom, which are anathema to him, since he has miserably failed to cope with both the challenges they pose and the possibilities they offer. Tortured by his personal alienation, which is accompanied by feelings of self-loathing, the believer craves a fairy-tale world where no individuality exists, and where human estrangement is thus impossible. The believer fantasizes about how his own individuality and self will be submerged within the collective whole."

A related theme is how personal alienation, and thus the need to belong to “something bigger than oneself,” ideally populated by co-victims, is related to guilt, the need for power, and its worship in the hands of a strongman: Lenin, Stalin, Mao, Castro, Ho, Pol Pot, Saddam, Arafat.

In his telling of the why, Dr. Glazov’s narrative covers vast territory: apologist pilgrims to the hellholes of the Soviet Union, Red China, North Vietnam and Communist Cuba; their reigning despots’ savage repression of individual rights and human dignity; the nature and goals of death-cult Islam; twenty-first century terrorism; and more.

And at the core of the alienation, self-hatred, envy, fear, and other-hatred are the warped psychologies of the supplicants who through the years have worshiped at the feet of the modern world’s most monstrous figures, while the streets are awash with blood and the lands fill with corpses. All, they say, in the name of peace, brotherhood and a promised utopia that is to be achieved by mass murder of innocent men, women and children.

Dr. Jamie Glazov has written a very important, impeccably sourced and beautifully written book. As promised, it explains the why which motivates some human beings to eschew life and instead worship death—all in the name of filling, through death and destruction, the self-caused void in their own souls.

United in Hate is a cautionary tale. Unless its message is heard, and acted upon, that death and destruction will continue to metastasize until freedom is dealt a blow from which it may not recover.

Good post!

What the right can't push completely under the table are things like segregation, Father Conklin, the KKK and the Citizens council. When a writer can explain away these niggling facts they might get some were.

We're screwed on both sides. The right wants to consolidate power. The left wants to decentralize it. Both are exercises in government and legislative excess which overwhelmingly benefit the system at the cost of the people who have to pay for it and who are overwhelmingly the middle-class and the poor. Its not the right that wants to tell you if you can smoke in your car or not. Both sides have to legislate and therefore it costs us money either way.

I think the left is in for a rude awakening resulting from the "economic crisis". Funding for the left is from a slightly different mix of interests. Often "new wealth" supports these causes but comparatively, the right's funding comes from "old wealth" which is less affected by economic cycles. Pretty soon people are going to tell the left to shut the hell up, get the fuck out of the legislature and stay out of the people's wallets. The right could capitalize on the rising tide against spending for squeaky wheels but somehow haven't got the message to stick.

Mass deception is fine however. You're allowed to create poverty, misery and chaos so long as you don't shoot anyone. Glazov appears to be focused on military conflict that the left allegedly supports. That doesn't make sense and it ignores the negative results of the past 60 years of social programs. Democracy has failed most of us and without massive reform we're going to sink deeper.

4235. Anyone listen to Voice of Korea yesterday (25 May)?

I was actually toying with the idea but decided to spend the morning reading, so I missed listening on what turned out to be a big news day for North Korea.

Not that it may have made any difference -- I just finished listening to today's 1500 UTC broadcast (comes in good and strong here in the Pacific Northwest on 9335 kHz), and the only mention of nuclear weaponry at all was in a propaganda piece that claimed their army was (amongst other things) "stronger than an atomic bomb".

It all makes one suspect domestic considerations (i.e. desire to impress the "Great Leader") instead of foreign ones might have been behind the recent nuclear test. We're talking about what is probably the world's most isolated and inward-looking country, after all.

Did anyone happen to catch yesterday's broadcast? Did they make any mention of the test on it?

I think we owe the world a few basic apologies. The first one should be for the stupid, corrupt invasion of Iraq for no known reason.

And you support the Iraq invasion when it suits you. Now, why did we do it? There is no reason I can see, no reason that Bush gave that panned out. But your repugs, lying is what you do well.

You and the other gay poster boy, the ugly Canadian, should take gay practices and preferences to some other news group. It's off topic for this news group.

You two need to get a room and leave the rest of us alone with talk about your sexual preferences.

The above has begun their transfer of the magazine to the Web. Today a PDF file of "Target Listening" had been posted. Apparently all contents of the magazine will eventually be posted, likely also as pdf files. It looks like all this is going to be FREE !!!
What a generous offer. WOW. Contributions will be appreciated I'm sure both financially and content. I for one will give generous support so that this unique offer will be a success. The magazine runs to many, many pages, so you will be able to download your columns of prefence, or the whole magazine, for that matter.
Many, many thanks to ODXA. Web site is http://www.odxa.on.ca

So, Is the conservative or liberal point of view to impose their will upon the woman?

Consider this. Suppose a quadraplegic takes up residence in your home without your permission. Do you then become responsible for the care of this human being? If you say no then why does

a woman become responsbile for some human who takes up residency in her womb without her permission?

The "old wealth" is a matter of entitlement and enfranchisement.
By making old wealth pay its own way assets move into the hands of the currently productive. While there is a moral need to support those who came before us and made the world a good place for us this doesn't mean "old wealth" since many who made this a good place for us weren't rewarded during their productive years.

My understanding is that DRM on Shortwave acts just like IBOC on AM, with adjacent-channel interference. Is this true, and has anyone noticed sideband interference coming out of 9800 Sackville? I picked up Radio Canada International today, and did not notice interference from them...

NO one shared any of this wealth with me, old or new, so why do I have to support those who came before me

Earn Through Paypal..Paypal Verified

THE PAYPAL 6 Dollar MONEY-MAKING METHOD AS SEEN ON OPRAH EARN HUGE $$$$ $$ Are you ready for the new and improved way to make instant money right into your paypal account. Oprah has proved that with $6 pound, a free paypal account and 30 minutes of your time, you can make between $30,000 and $50,000. Paypal has even verified this Scheme is 100% legal.

So if you can make $50,000 with $6 pound how much could you make with $10? Can you say multimillionaire?

WELL for those of you who are not familiar with this cash making machine it runs purely on honesty and Four simple steps. I gave it a try, hey its only $6, I figured at least 6 people would respond out of the MILLIONS of people that use the internet. You should give it a try too! You have nothing to lose, and a whole lot to gain!

A little while back, I was browsing through some interesting adds, just like you are now and came across an article similar to this that said you could make thousands pounds within weeks with only an initial investment of $6.00!

From PayPal: "Dear Member, it has come to our attention that there is a PayPal scheme floating around at the moment you may have heard or seen the $6 scheme. You may have even taken part in it well we have been asked a lot of questions about this scheme the answer is yes it does work and yes it is safe to use providing you follow the rules it is legal and has made a big hit on the internet this year. If you would like to take part in this scheme or would like a bit more information then please see the attached file that was kindly donated to us. Thank you for using PayPal!"

Anyway, it said that you send $1.00 though paypal to each of the emails stated in the article. You then place your own email address in the bottom of the list at. 6, and post the article in at least 200 news groups. (There are a lot) So after thinking about it, I went ahead trying it.
I figured what have I got to lose except $6.00 small change, right? Like most of us I was a little skeptical and a little worried about the legal aspects of it.

It follows the same regulations as the "mailed chain letters, which according to the U.S. Post Office (1-800-725-2161) is indeed legal! Then I invested the measly $6.00. Well GUESS WHAT!!? Within days, I started getting money in my paypal account! I was shocked! I figured it would end soon, but the money just kept coming in. This is now my fourth week and I have made a total of just over $24,641.00 and it's still coming in rapidly. It's Certainly worth $6.00.

Let me tell you how this works and most importantly, why it works? REQUIREMENTS: You must have a verified paypal account. If you do not have an account you can go to www.paypal.com..... and get a free account. I would suggest signing up for a business account because it does not limit you to the amount of money you can receive.

Example: with a Personal account you are limited to receiving $500.00 a month and withdrawing $500.00 a month. And trust me you WILL be receiving more than $500.00 a month! Like I said before In order to place the initial $6 into your account, you will have to verify your bank account with paypal (which may take a few days).

STEP 1: Send, through paypal, $1.00 to each email on the below list. Make the subject of the payment "Email List" and in the comments, write "PLEASE PUT ME ON YOUR EMAIL LIST." What you are doing is creating a service by this and best of all you are not giving your address to anyone ... THIS IS ABSOLUTELY LEGAL!

The email list:

1) Famouspuffy@live.com

2) nandanikapoor@rocketmail.com

3) nidhikumari86@yahoo.in

4) guru_bhai@hotmail.com

5) abhishek.rathore@live.in

6) cygnus.cloister@gmail.com

STEP 2: Now take the #1 email off the list that you see above, move the other addresses up(6 becomes 5, 5 becomes 4, etc) and add YOUR email address (the one used on the paypal account) as number 6 on the list.

STEP 3: Change anything you need to, but try to keep this article as close to original as possible. Now, post your amended article to at least 200 newsgroups, message board. (I think there are close to 32,000 groups) All you need is 200, but remember, the more you post, the more money you make - as well as everyone else on the list! For example: you log on to any search engine like yahoo.com, google.com, altavista.com, excite.com then you search with subject like ? millionaire message board? or ?money making message board? or ? employment message board? or ?money making discussions? or ?money making forum? or ?business message board? etc.

STEP 4: Sit back and watch the money roll in.Remember, all of this is ABSOLUTELY LEGAL. You are creating a service! If you have any doubts, please refer to Title 18 Sec. 1302 & 1241 of the United States Postal laws. Send your payments to the email addresses

I have and it usually covers at least 3 channels. It is stupid to have

So, Is the conservative or liberal point of view to impose their will upon the woman?

Consider this. Suppose a quadraplegic takes up residence in your home without your permission. Do you then become responsible for the care of this human being? If you say no then why does
a woman become responsbile for some human who takes up
residency in her womb without her permission?

Has she not, by virtue of having had the requisite coitus, given defacto permission (rape notwithstanding)?

You think to narrowly. I'm pretty sure hereditary entitlement of the enfranchised is a world wide phenomenon. The systems by which those at the top may differ from country to country but the results are the same. Sure it is class warfare, those at the top started it and complain about those at the bottom not accepting their place. It is not Racial or Ethnic warfare since the division spans such lines. I've known several friends who took up the islamic faith because of the lot hindu left them.

Repetition doesn't make Liberals "Fascists".
Fascism is a right wing concept and goal.
Liberals favor democratic rule over dictatorships.

No. pregnancy is no more a result of coitus than becoming a millionare is a result of playing lotto. While you have to play to win few who play actually win. Most who do it do it for fun not for the chance of having a baby. Those who do it to have a baby will not ask for the human to be evicted. There is no meeting of the minds between the parties prior to human taking up resident in the womb so no contract was made.

Old wealth is immoral. That's the reason for high estate taxes; to Notice, the right wing poster (above) can't answer any thing I posited. Nope, attack the poster not the post is the way the right wing does there thing.

And now I'm a "Liberal Fascist". In the past we have been (bleep) lovers, communists, socialists, taxaholics, the list goes on and on. Glad the right came up with a new one.

Hmm, "Liberal Fascist" , wonder if that is from the same word mill that churned out Islamo-fascist? Maybe they bought the word fascist and now they have to do something with it.

Hmmm, a right wing attempt to slough off their history. You know, their continuing support of segregation. Until the repugs can get rid of the taint of segregation they will have to relegate them selves to being a regional party.

No. She has not given permission for it. She accented to sex. Not to motherhood. Perhaps the male lied and told her he had been "fixed" or that he would use a condom, or, or, or. The "intent" of the act was not necessarily motherhood. She could also have been mistaken about her own ovulation periods. There is not (regardless of your particular opinions) a prohibition on sex except that it be a necessary "evil" for procreation.

Your being a prude does not allow you to dictate that prudishness to others based on some religious fundamentalism. The short point is "Stay the hell out of the lives of others".

I got an email from them today.It says they have my WiFi Wide Angle High Beam Antenna ready.I needs to call their toll free number if I still want it.

I will call MFJ when I gits back home from the scrap (arn) iron yard.I am ready to haul that old Chevrolet truck frame that I hack sawed into four pieces to The Can Man scrap iron yard on Valley Street, that other long piece of that truck frame, I will haul it off tomorrow, because I don't want to take a chance of rippin up the padded carpeted (up polstery) upholstery on the inside walls of my van.I have some boards on the floor of my van so that old raggity truck frame can't ripp the padded carpeted floor of my van.Good thinking, huh?
Yipeeeeee, my Antenna is ready!

I don't think there is one.

We're talking about what is probably the most closed society on the face of the earth right now. I believe there is no internet service in the entire country (with the exception of satellite links in foreign embassies). The government doesn't trust even its most loyal apparatchiks with exposure to an outside world that might "contaminate" their world-view.

I believe some DPRK-watchers have from time to time recorded broadcasts off shortwave and put them online, but that's only an occasional and sporadic (and often not very current) source. North Korea is one of those holdout cases where shortwave remains the best practical way to receive information directly from the country of origin.

If you're _really_ interested in hearing their propaganda directly, I suggest you purchase one of the many reasonably-priced portable shortwave receivers currently on the market.

I don't think there is one.

We're talking about what is probably the most closed society on the face of the earth right now. I believe there is no internet service in the entire country (with the exception of satellite links in foreign embassies). The government doesn't trust even its most loyal apparatchiks with exposure to an outside world that might "contaminate" their world-view.

There is indeed internet in the DPRK. It is, however, tightly controlled, almost exclusively accessed in their equivalent of the "PC Bang" (PC room), with a state chaperone standing there watching over everyone's shoulders.
Limited e-mail access between family members with family in the south, etc.

It's indeed a very closed society, but not so much as you may be lead to believe. Several ROK businesses have manufacturing facilities in the DPRK (a pilot program in a city just north of the border). People being people, one can be certain that the employees there do talk about things they see and hear..

One interesting thing to look at: The ROK still (even though they SAID they stopped years ago) jams several DPRK MW stations. Gotta wonder about that one. I don't hear any jamming coming the other direction (of course, that could be because the main KBS MW outlets are running in excess of 1.5MW daytime and 750KW night....)

Interesting, mostly when I read an anti-abortion screed, it's written by some guy. Now why is that? Is it because banning abortion won't influence them at all? Sorta like Briston Palin's boy friend.

And this "guy" is the same way. He's not going to have a baby, he's not going to deliver but he's still against every thing that doesn't affect him.

Old dictatorial habits die hard, I suppose. And if the MW content is as loopy as the international, you'd think the ROK would WANT their citizens to see what passes for thinking in the North.

Then again, maybe they're afraid that the urge for reunification will trump good sense in a significant number of their people.

As for the DPRK not jamming the south's MW: Electricity is a rare and precious commodity there, right? And I believe they don't allow their people to have any radios that can tune in anything but the Dear Leader's stuff. If that's still true, and there isn't a sizable number of people homebrewing their own sets, why waste valuable money jamming what isn't being heard anyway?

You heard it here first! Men by simply having sex, are not responsible Small spots like this are not going to have an effect.

Larger spots have flares that generate X-rays, which strongly charge particles in the atmosphere depending on the height above the earth cause layers to have different dielectric constants, which in turn refract the radio waves back to earth making long distance communications possible.

Right now we have a sun generating a weak by comparison but steady X-ray stream that is weakly charging the particles into ions in the atmosphere so the daytime high frequency is not so good but night time low band is very good with the mostly undisturbed earths magnetosphere.

Not quite right. UV is a higher frequency than visible light and X-ray are a higher frequency than UV.

Low to high frequency is infra red (radiated heat), visible light, UV, X-rays.

DRM is just digital without the analog signal. The digital signal all by itself covers at least three channels.

I don't think he has been off the air. Perhaps he's on less frequently, or has changed the times he goes live.

In addition to the prophet's 24/7/365 broadcast and net feed, he's also on loads of AM stations (probably FM too) for a few hours per day. Here in NYC he has 3 hours or so every night at 02:00 or so on 620kHz. These seem to be quite current -- he discusses the news, reads letters, and has been pushing his 3-day group fast (scheduled for this weekend, believe). I occasionally listen to these hours (there's something compelling about the guy -- and when he plays tape of the abusive phone calls he gets, it's great!) My impression is he's still broadcasting.

I think what he does is a few hours of new program every day or so and those hours are "privileged". That is, those are the ones he broadcasts over stations where he only has a few hours. So while the shortwave feed may be 90% repeats, the short mediumwave shows are much more "new."

See if he's on a local AM where you are, especially for only an hour or two. If so, listen to that programming, as it'll give a better sense of what he's been up to lately. My 2 cents, anyways.

Now, what might be fun is for the ROK to take some of those insanely powerful transmitters they use locally, tune them to the frequencies that the Dear Leader uses to reach his adoring people, and aim them at the DPRK's population centers...

Then put on some "Lord Haw-Haw" type performances, mocking the crazy little maniac and his insane, homicidal policies and regime.

Just for 2 or 3 minutes at a time... randomly distributed during peak listening hours... I'll bet THAT would give the starving, mind-numbed masses the energy needed to tune in!

Then again... it might rile up the little bugger so much that he sends a million troops over the DMZ.

That wouldn't be so funny, after all. So let's just scrap the whole idea.

I use good old "Roy G. Biv"* to remember it. (For those unfamiliar with this mnemonic, "vide infra," -- pun intended.) So, we get...

infrared ("below" red) --> red (the "R" in Roy) --> other colors, in order --> violet (the "V" in Biv) --> ultraviolet ("beyond" violet).

A little Latin and etymology goes a long way.

[* Roy G Biv == the order: Red, Orange, Yellow, Green, Blue, Indigo, Violet.]

One station, at 972 KHz, is just across the bay from me (you can hear them on any radio, even one with no antenna...) and is beamed due north to Pyeongyang. Apparently, there is some political fun and games because now the following seems to be in force:

Strangely, the North does not usually jam the medium-wave transmissions of South Korea's broadcast towards-the-North, KBS Radio Korean Ethnicity (formerly KBS Radio Liberty Social Education) on 972 and 1134 kHz. It should be noted that KBS Radio Korean Ethnicity actually no longer targets North Koreans since the North-South Korea Joint Declaration on 15 June 2000. As of 15 August 2007, the radio channel has changed to a special radio broadcast for ethinic Koreans in Northeast China and Far Eastern Russia.[2]

So tell us, prick, when did you have an abortion? What have you actually experienced?

Just like all the scum sucking anti-abortion male activists you have never been pregnant but you know aaalllllll about abortion. The facts are simple. You are scared of women. You are scared to let women go and talk to their doctors and make their own decisions.

And you are too gutless to have insisted that the repugs quit playing politics with the abortion issue. Yeah, a real gutless individual. When you had the power you never, ever proposed a constitutional amendment, a bill, any thing to out law abortion. You were happy to be used as a cash cow.

While there can be no meeting of the minds between the mother or father and the life created there can be a meeting of the minds between the mother and the father concerning any life created. It behooves
the
couple to make a contract concerning such matters.

We can move down the road to what obligations a society can force upon an individual if you'd like. We'd need to start from basic principles concerning such matters so we know these principles are consistently applied in all our decisions. Both the left and the right seem to be helter-skelter on the application of first principles.

The fate of the moon in the Holy Quran and science

By Magdy Abd AL-Shafy

I would be thankful if you give my article 5 minute of your value time. THANK YOU

Modern astrophysics , depending on accurate calculations , says that both the moon and the sun will be joined someday . The Holy Quran , in reference to the Doomsday , stresses the same fact .

Here is an article from Nasa that explains how all it will begin : the study says " Our Sun is made up of more than billions and billons of tons of matter. As a result, all of that matter produces a huge amount of gravitational force that squeezes the star more and more inward. In order to combat the inward crush from the gravitational force, The Sunutilizes fusion power to hold themselves up. At the Sun’s core, where the crush is most extreme, Hydrogen nuclei are repeatedly pushed together and combined to form Helium. A small amount of energy is given up in these fusion reactions. The newly formed energy flows outward toward the Sun’s surface heating the outer layers in the process and puffing the Sun up to counteract the inward force of gravity. According to scientists, as long as the Hydrogen fusion reactions are functioning as they have in the past, the Sun is safe from gravity and can continue to serve as a source of heat and light for Earth. Unfortunately, the hydrogen fuel of the Sun can’t last forever. All good things eventually come to an end. In approximately five billion years from now, the Hydrogen at the center of the Sun will all be converted to Helium. At this point, the Sun will begin die. The Holy Quran refers to this stage in the life of the sun , God says in the Holy Quran what means " When the sun (with its spacious light) is folded up " [81: 1]This is a matchless *phor for causing the sun to lose its light. Takwir means to fold up; hence takwir al`amamah for folding up the turban on the head. Here, the light which radiates from the sun and spreads throughout the solar system has been likened to the turban and it has been said that on the Resurrection Day the turban will be folded up about the sun and its radiation will fade. Many Astronomers also believe that this will also start the beginning of trouble on our planet. Without its Hydrogen, the Sun has to find an alternate way to free up energy and combat gravity. The Helium deposits in its core can be fused into Carbon and Oxygen, but only if the conditions in The Sun’s core become much more extreme. In order for this to happen, the Sun changes in a very radical way. The core contracts and, even more importantly, the outer layers swell.
When the Sun reaches its maturity, it will begin to bloat and swallow

all the inner planets including the moon .

Another scientists says " The Sun is midway through its stable hydrogen burning phase known as the main sequence. But when the Sun enters the red giant phase in around 5 billion years things are going to get a lot rougher in the Earth-Moon system. "During the red giant phase the Sun will swell until its distended atmosphere reaches out to envelop the Earth and Moon

The Holy Quran refers to this stage in the following Holy Verse ; God says in the Holy Quran what means " And the sun and moon are joined together," Joined together ….doesn't science say that ? Yes , it does …..so who told Mohummed …..He must be God , the creator of the universe …….it must be God who knows all the secrets of the universe … SO the Holy Quran is surely a Divine Book . When the moon is so close to the sun , the outer crust will expand and broke into pieces , exactly like when the earth when undergoes an earth quake . The Holy quran mentions this stage in the following verse "When the planets are scattered" It is scientifically known that the stars are planets .

The moon is moving towards the sun

How was the moon near to the earth billions of years ago billion years ago, the Moon was much closer to Earth than it will be tonight. Its tighter orbit meant it needed just 20 days to go around us, to make a lunar month. Other things were noticeably different, too. A day on Earth back then was only 18 hours long.

The Moon is now moving away from Earth and by then will be in an orbit that's about 40 percent larger than today. It will be the first to warp under the Sun's influence. Today, the Moon is on average 239,000 miles (385,000 kilometres) away and has reached this point after a long and dramatic journey. How far does the moon go every year ? The Moon is being pushed away from Earth by 1.6 inches (4 centimeters) per year and our planet's rotation is slowing. So the further the moon goes , the less its light till it meets the welloen atmosphere of the sun . The Holy Quran mention this scientific fact which implies that the moon is moving away from the earth ." And the moon is buried in darkness. " [AL-Kayma :8] The moon will move away from the earth till it meets with the swollen sun ,thus collected or joined with the sun Unspeakable events will happen before the doomsday . Further , Quran tells us that the sun will attract or swallow the moon ; God says in the Holy Quran what means " And the sun and moon are joined together " [AL-Kayma :8]

it is literally says that both the sun and the moon will be joined together . Numeric miracle : Astrophysics says that the moon and the sun are aligned (19) times in the year ; the word the moon and the sun are coupled or mentioned together(19) times . Though scientists calculate the period of cosmos events by millions and even billions of years , we would like to say that these are theoretical calculations . God has created certain laws that we don't understand , An astrophysics says , likening the human knowledge of present scientists as those of kids in kindergarten . this means that human mind hasn’t got every thing . God says in the holy quran what means " of knowledge it is only a little that is communicated to you, (O men) [Al-Asra : 84] We want to say that such calculations may happen because of the other laws that we don’t know . Any way there is a conformity between what science and the Holy Quran says

In the intervening eons, the Moon has been drifting away. Each year, it moves about 1.6 inches (4 centimeters) farther intspace.

Can be a coincidence that such accurate facts in the holy Quran be in conformity with the newly discovered scientific facts ? If Mohummed is imposter , why did he leave the culture of his age ,though he received no culture . He could have won many people on his part , if he had mentioned the culture of his age . Who told him such highly scientific facts that highly qualified scientists ,after long –tiring search , came to? There is no doubt that Quran must be God’s word , who says in the Holy Quran what means " Should He not know, He that created? And He is the One that understands the finest mysteries (and) is well acquainted (with them). (Al-Malek :14) What do you still in need to believe ? What evidence do you still in need to believe ? What can be called the unseen is turning to be seen You are running out of time , once the story of your life comes to an end , there will either permanent happiness or eternal perdition . It is time to win yourself "And He found thee wandering, and He gave thee guidance." The word wandering is not an accurate translation , the word (Dala=wandering " has another meaning , it is the intended meaning , it means (loving) In Arabic , excessive love makes the human wander aimlessly , nothing here or there to attract his attention but his beloved – that is the case with some Sufis Abu-Alyazedd, once filled the ecstasy of love towards god , so he wanderd till he entered into a field of sugarcane , already harvested , so the rest of remained as knives in the field , he walked on them , not feeling , his leg were severely wounded and bled so much , he was wandering not feeling of what happened –he bled all his blood till he died . This what happen when God manifests himself partly to the human heart Remember what happen to the mountain when God manifested Himself Also , remember when in Journey nigh the angel stopped at a certain point no able to move , he won’t be able to bear the lights of God’s glory –manifestation Only Mohummed was supplied by another power to bear As to prophet Mohummed , It is something unknown that was enshrined in his heart , this move him to wander , moved him to leave his wife , his tribe , all of the world , he left the world to live in a versy small cave in a very hot desert – for what , the verse answer him saying " we found you (Dala-wanderer) and we did guide you.

Fascism and neofascism: Fascism is an especially virulent
form of far-right populism. Fascism glorifies national,
racial, or cultural unity and collective rebirth while seeking to purge imagined enemies, and attacks both revolutionary movements and liberal pluralism in favor of militarized, totalitarian mass politics. Fascism first crystallized in Europe in response to the Bolshevik Revolution and the devastation of World War I, and then spread to other parts of the world. If it is a post-WWII occurrence it should be called neofascist or neofascism unless it solely involves participants in older movements. Neofascists reinterpret fascist ideology and strategy in various ways to fit new circumstances.

Yeah, it makes as much sense as "waterless water."

http://www.publiceye.org/glossary/glossary_big.html#f

Fascism and neofascism: Fascism is an especially virulent
form of far-right populism. Fascism glorifies national,
racial, or cultural unity and collective rebirth while
seeking to purge imagined enemies, and attacks both revolutionary movements and liberal pluralism in favor of militarized, totalitarian mass politics. Fascism first crystallized in Europe in response to the Bolshevik Revolution and the devastation of World War I, and then spread to other parts of the world. If it is a post-WWII occurrence it should be called neofascist or neofascism
unless it solely involves participants in older movements.
Neofascists reinterpret fascist ideology and strategy in various ways to fit new circumstances.

Modern Republicans and Democrats both misuse the term "fascist" -- and to such a degree that the misuse has started to be enshrined in dictionaries.

In the broad sense, the term (from the Latin for "bundle") just means the strength of a united people -- as in the ancient Roman story in which a father asks his sons to gather sticks from the forest and bring them to him. Taking the wooden rods one at a time, he easily breaks each of them in two. But when the very same rods are bound together -- symbolizing a united family or people -- they are unbreakable.

The fascist symbol, or _fasces_, thus became the symbol of the Roman Republic and its ideals. It was also used by the French republic, was adopted by Mussolini's 20th century Fascist movement, and was also used by the United States during the same era.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Fasces

The U.S. dime displayed the fascist symbol on its reverse from 1916-1945 See

http://www.mountainviewcoins.com/10%20Mercury%20Dime%20Reverse%201926.jpg

and

http://www.mountainviewcoins.com/Mercury_Dimes.php and it is displayed prominently to this day in the main chamber of the U.S. Senate:

http://tinyurl.com/jfk-fasces

It's also a prominent element of Daniel Chester French's highly idealized sculpture in the Lincoln Memorial.

In the narrow sense, fascism means specifically the social movement popularized by Benito Mussolini and to some degree carried on into more recent times by the Movimento Sociale Italiano.

It was characterized by the ideal of the state as expressing the will of the people, with the people being an organic, natural entity, not divided into classes with differing economic interests but instead with each sector of society (such as farmers, laborers, administrators, merchants, et cetera) able to elect its own legislative representatives. In practice, many compromises were made with allies and with the old order of things.

The central government and ruling party had a lot of authority under Italian fascism, and that is really the only similarity real fascism shares with the pop-definition of the word. But other central governments and parties past and present had similar or greater degrees of authority -- such in fact being the norm for almost all human societies throughout history.

The pop-definition of "fascist" is roughly "big, bad, scary, and mean authoritarianism."

"Fascist" is used by the Democrat gang to refer to the Republicans and their often authoritarian views on (among other things) war, drugs, and sexuality -- and by the Republican gang to refer to the Democrats and their often authoritarian views on (among other things) freedom of association, financial privacy, and taxation.

It's misused that way because both sides think they can make brownie points by scaring voters with the spectre of authoritarianism from the rival gang.

Here's the truth: both modern Republicans and modern Democrats score pretty high on the authoritarianism scale -- somewhat higher, I'd say, than the Movimento Sociale Italiano.

With every good wish,

Kevin Alfred Strom.

Just follow the thread. This is the conclusion one might reach based on the sexist poster's premise, in this case pro-choice for women only. When asked if a women is responsible for pregnancy if she has intercourse, the poster's answer was "no". I've simply asked a follow-

Lets just make it so men are equally responsible.

If women can abandon children at a Fire House, men should be able to do the same. If women can put a child up for adoption so can a man and if a woman is not paying into the court system for child support then neither should the man.

Ah, another Dementia Wonderland dweller.

http://www.publiceye.org/glossary/glossary_big.html#f

Fascism and neofascism: Fascism is an especially virulent
form of far-right populism. Fascism glorifies national,
racial, or cultural unity and collective rebirth while
seeking to purge imagined enemies, and attacks both revolutionary movements and liberal pluralism in favor of militarized, totalitarian mass politics. Fascism first crystallized in Europe in response to the Bolshevik Revolution and the devastation of World War I, and then spread to other parts of the world. If it is a post-WWII
occurrence it should be called neofascist or neofascism
unless it solely involves participants in older movements.
Neofascists reinterpret fascist ideology and strategy in various ways to fit new circumstances.

Ok .. wrong angle on the uv .. I was thinking that the 'wave length' was shorter ..... white to dark ......so its not the actual 'spot' that genarates the x ray radiation .. but the 'flare or flux lines' that appeare to come from and go back into the 'spot' ....
as per the magneto gram ......

final take ......try this

1. the 'flux' that is 'flowing' from +/- magnetic 'aeras' .. gives off x-ray radiation .(how .. energy collapse.transform to xrays ..
'led' type of thing?) . the bigger the 'event' the bigger the x-ray level .. so more spots = more x-rays = more layer inoisation

2 when the flow exceeds the 'magnetic' constraint and ruptures , this releases what ever is in the flow ,particals, making a solar
'flare' .assume these are high energy particales .. which once free .. do not collapse . which on arival proceedes to cause deeper ioisation , over cooking the system .... no radio . power surges etc.

That sounds better ?

G ..

> Yea, doesn't DRM also have digital saddlebags as IBOC?

Digital mode transmission spreads out due to square waves being composed of odd harmonics. You need at least the first two for a square wave to have its basic shape and so 1, 3, and the 5th harmonic. For a square wave that looks very much like you would expect you need 1,3,5,7, and the 9th harmonic, 5 total, so you can maybe get the feel of how a digital modulated signal needs to spread out occupying a wide swath of frequencies.

The current scheme to minimize this spread of modulation harmonics IBOC or DRM is to use multiple carriers switched on and off at an audio rate. The problem here is that these modulation algorithms are not as efficient as analog modulation regarding frequency efficiency. This is one of the dirty secrets of current digital modulation schemes. There are upsides to using digital mode but you will use up more the frequency spectrum to get it.

This multiple carrier idea is old technology for either IBOC or DRM.
The only thing remotely new are the algorithms used to digitally encode the audio before that is applied to the modulation algorithm.

This mix of audio digital encoding and modulation scheme has a tendency to appear as a random square wave modulation of the carrier, which completely fills the occupying spectrum used. This creates the "saddlebags" you mention.

Digital mode is fundamentally incompatible with analog channel assignments and as such is part and parcel of the folly of mixing analog and digital modulation modes in the same band. In other words it is just plain stupid decision making.

Old technology coupled with dumb decisions equals the mess we have to deal with on a daily basis now on AMBCB and the SW bands.

That's correct. The theory is that when the magnetic lines of force get tangled at a spot on the suns surface it impedes the flow of material from the inner sun to the surface causing the area to be cooler by about 1000 to 2000 degrees kelvin.

The "flare" is from matter in the sun escaping the surface into the photosphere and beyond being accelerated and heated at a very high rate.

This is not a simple topic. You should go visit science web sites for a complete theoretical explanation. Start here. After reading this page you will learn a lot and then there are links to follow at the bottom.

Tookin me a leetle cig n coffee break right now, workin on my flower bed on top of that old concrete septic tank in my front yard, after I hack sawed that old truck frame into four (count em, four pieces) pieces a few days ago and yesterday I hauled those pieces to The Can Man scrap iron yard.

Ouija Boards are nothing but a silly game.One time George Noory said he broke a Ouija Board into a bunch of little pieces and threw it into the trash can.He said the next day, it reappeared all back together on a shelf in one of his closets.

That is Rediculous beyond compare! Impossible!

I still wouldn't live on, or near a beach for anything in the World.

What about that million man army?

> The Chinese have nukes but they will not use them to take Taiwan.

The Chinese want to take Taiwan and its people over because they want a one China. They don't want the Taiwanese dead so they will pummel them a little with conventional weapons to soften them up then mass invade them wreaking as little infrastructure as possible in the process. The best scenario for the Red Chinese would be for Taiwan to just give up independence.

In the case of those who would chose abortion,
no where. If you think society should oblige a where a society can force an obligation onto

- - Where is the Humanity and Love {Sense of Family}
- - Between a Man and a Women and the New Life
- - {Children} That They Have Created in Your Thinking ?
- - * Humanity
- - * Love
- - * New Life
- - * Family
- - * Society

- In the case of those who would chose abortion,
- no where.

Yes - Forcing a Women to have an Abortion as her
'only' Choice is very De-Humanizing for the Woman.

- If you think society should oblige a woman
- to carry to term you are considering where
- a society can force an obligation onto a woman.

Society is 'obligating' Women Everyday to Have Abortions and Living with the Emotional Pain and Suffering of Having Killed Their Own Babies.

- Where is the love in that?

Yes - Abortion ! -really- Where Is The Love In That ?

The Far-Left loves to define Fascism as an exclusive Far-Right 'thing'. {Blame Them Not Me}

Fascism is Fascism and whether the Fascist Methods, and Techniques are employed by the Left or Right means no difference to the People being subjugated and exploited by the Fascists.

The Liberal-Fascist 'Populism' of the Obama-Regime© is setting a new standard for Fascism in the 21st Century.

Duh. You are an affront to logic. Please name a woman who the gov't "forces" to have an abortion. A woman choosing to have an abortion is not the same as being "forced". Time to call up the angels in your brain, so that you can make them dance on the head of a pin, again.

Please, show us the mental masturbation you are so good at.

How is this responsive? One needn't have a PhD to understand logic.
I have no degree at all. I learned Boolean logic while in the 6th grade
by being a sounding board for my dad as he was learning it.
Interestingly his text book introduced many wacky techniques to help optomize a formula and thereby reduce the number of components to implement it in an electronic device.

I suspect RHF doesn't know how to use predicate logic. Many on the right (and left) would be well served by learning the rules of logic so that they can discuss issues rationally and improve their arguments rather than attempting to twist other's words. Clarity of thought rather than strength of conviction is the surest way to the truth of the matter.
I'm trying to bring him along but it's hard to help someone who doesn't know how to determine the validity of an argument let alone the soundness
of one.

North Korea doesn't have a monopoly on this kind of mind set. Pretty much all of the middle east has chosen to live with near stone age values and customs, while utilizing purchased modern day technology to specifically further their political and religious goals.

Western civilization, with all it's sophistication and ingenuity, has chosen to sell out and bargain with these throwback societies, all for the sake of a fast buck!

The scientists predict cooling in many places (including N. America) and warming in others. Agriculture will quickly collapse. There will be famine, displacement, wars, and megadeath. Hoopla!

That democrat dude who lives across the street from me, he said he worked at The Can Man scrap iron yard for eighteen years.Yesterday, when I was working on my flower bed, he stepped over here.He said that pretty woman who works in the office at The Can Man is single.

This morning on his radio talk show, www.supertalkms.com Paul Gallo said Italian Americans are smarter than Irish Americans.
I wonder why he thinks that? About nine or ten sompin years ago, it was Voted the Irish women in Ireland have the sexiest sounding voices in the World.

Look at who Signed the United States Constitution.Italy's govt is a socialist govt.

If he's gunning for respect, he's going about it in a strange way. I can respect someone who screws up and admits to getting it wrong. But those kooktards who just can't let go and maintain themselves even when everything else says they're wrong I'll never have a shard of respect for those guys.

Respect is something you don't understand.

The only thing you are capable of is projecting your perversities upon others. Post your stupid crap someplace else.

This is an emotional argument over human life involving spirituality.

There is clear right and wrong human actions here but some do not value human life or even believe that we also have a spiritual side so basically it boils down to disparate values and a concept of self and is not a matter of debate logic.

When, as a wee lad, I first tackled trig., my dissolute uncle taught me a wonderfully effective mnemonic for the sin, cos, and tan relationships.

Since it is somewhat vulgar, I will refrain from repeating in here, as I have seen complaints of a prudish nature about certain posts. (Although I did not see the original "offensive" posts.)

Suffice it to say it concerned practitioners of the world's oldest profession and the wares they had on offer.

I was taught it once and it has never once failed me.

How Would You Know . . . What I Know ?

- Many on the right (and left) would be well served
- by learning the rules of logic so that they can
- discuss issues rationally and improve their
- arguments rather than attempting to twist
- other's words.

For 'many' on the Left (and Right) Feelings Are Facts :
* I 'feel' what I know.
* I know what I 'feel'
* Those Are My Factual 'Feelings'
-and- Your Facts
-and- Your Knowing
Can Not Will Not Change Them.
{Your Reality Is Not My Reality}
+ Feelings Trump Logic
+ Feelings Trump Rational Reasoning
= My Feelings Trump Your Arguments

- Clarity of thought rather than strength
- of conviction is the surest way to the
- truth of the matter.

The Clarity of the Strength of Conviction Is The Truth of the Matter : For Those Who 'Feel' That They Are Justly Right.

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof..."

Pretty straightforward, you would think.. but it's never been that way. For instance, religions requiring human sacrifice are prohibited.

That aside, if you use the black and white interpretation of the Constitution that Scalia SAYS he promotes, there is nothing in the First Amendment that says anything about a local city council not prohibiting.. and there are such things as zoning ordinances. A lot of cities make you get a car dealers license or a special parking permit if you own more than three cars.

That's so wrong. The object of logic isn't to debate but to reach the truth of the matter. It can encompass disparate values and concepts of self. The clarity of right and wrong are enhanced by thinking rationally about the issues. I examine my emotions all the time so that I can tell what is cause and what is effect. I don't let people pull my chain because I know where all the chains are. (That's a bit of a bravado statement since I am human and not machine.)

Think what you wish. It's your life.
You make mistakes that impact you and others. I'm sure you feel victimized by those who react to the effects upon them of your unrepentant mistakes.

Every one makes mistakes. Only a fool mistakes and avoiding repetition of mistakes made.

Nope. I have devalued your opinions based upon your statement of them.

The guy that made the site and the books is a college professor with a Ph.D. in political science. Just keep this in mind the next time you engage a liberal Democrap in an argument.

Well, then you are an exception and what you propose won't work with the majority of people because they will not do the work you are willing to do.

If the city has a problem with a few people getting together for a bible study don't you think a party would be more of a nuisance with the loud noises and inebriated people getting back into their cars in the early hours of the morning?

The point is that the bible study is a get together not a service and government has no business regulating it.

A truly life changing experience is a crack whore getting even more welfare money after the delivery of her fifth child...all of them from different, diseased sperm donors.

"Respect" to the kooktard seems to solely consist of his claims being taken seriously. They seem to have no idea how whacky most, if not all of their claims are, and, as Telemundoh does, get very angry that those claims are mocked and laughed at. Yet those same people will react the same way to other kooktardic claims made by others about something else, not able to see the claims they make are just as ridiculous as the ones made by the other kooktards. It's like they are "kookblind", totally unaware of their own kooktardery.

This is what makes them so much fun.

So few of them ever admit to being wrong, as it's literally giving up their religion, so I never thought of "respecting" them. A few of them just disappeared from the threads about the BC, so I guess those kooks came to their senses enough to realize that the Obama BC nonsense is just too far out there, even for them. And that takes some doing.

Maybe he should go to Sam's Club, or Costco, and buy himself a bunch of Pam non-stick cooking spray. Useful for many things, some of which involve actual cooking.

Heh, I miss Sammy's on the Island (Okaloosa Island, I think it is) in Destin,Florida and that place (I forget the name of it) on that little side road by the Courtney Campbell Bridge in Tampa,Florida.One time I was sitting in there (Tampa) and I asked one of those wimmin,,, Does the Bridge go to St.Petersburg?
She got all excited, she said,,,
No! don't go that way! go on down to 29th street and go across that bridge!
She said she was from Hungary.Her skin was the same color as grey cast iron.

The inebriated are "closer to God" than the co-dependent functions you advocate.

Bibles should be turned into blotter acid; then we'd have a religion!

In Communist China today you still need a permit (good luck -lol) for any type of gathering whatsoever. I don't know of any that have ever been issued.

Liberal Fascists "beleive" that any "get together" (even virtual get togethers such as a listeners in the privacy of their own homes listening to a radio station personality) that does not extol the Neo-Commie agenda is considered "anti-revolutionary" and must be snuffed out. Read the real biography of Mao Tse Dung and the motive of his cultural revolution http://www.amazon.com/Mao-Story-Jung-Chang/dp/0679746323/and you will completely understand the dimented mind of Liberal Fascists and Dr.DaviDs alike.

Experts explain how high immigration harms working Americans, especially the poorest

A new half-hour video assembles some two dozen of the nation's foremost leaders in protecting American workers. The video gives them a soapbox to explain how elected leaders use high immigration to drive down the wages of -- and throw out of work -- many of the country's most vulnerable citizens.

"Immigration 103 -- American Trauma: Jobs and the Economy" is your personal college short course that is especially appropriate during this time of extreme unemployment.

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to sit in a room in Washington D.C. during a spirited discussion among immigration experts with backgrounds in the old INS, the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation, FAIR, NumbersUSA, the Center for Immigration Studies, the Heritage Foundation and many others?

This is your chance.

Watch a six-minute trailer
http://www.numbersusa.com/content/resources/video/promise-home/teaser-american-trauma-jobs
-and-economy.html

or go directly to the full video.
http://www.numbersusa.com/content/resources/video/promise-home/american-trauma-jobs-and-ec

Use them in programs for civic clubs, unions, veterans groups and churches.

Yesterday afternoon at about 5:15 PM my MFJ Wide Angle High Beam WiFi Antenna showed up here via UPS.It is a dinky little thing, measures about 3 3/4 inches square.
It took em long enough.I ordered that Antenna over three months ago.I don't know what I am going to do with it.I ordered it only because I reckon it might come in handy someday.

"Mr. Cover's analysis is shoddy. He glosses over the fact that the 14th Amendment was NOT implicated in Heller because the DC is not a state. Indeed, Justice Scalia himself, writing for the 5-4 majority, noted that "the Second Amendment applies only to the Federal Government" [fn. 23, citing Presser & Miller]. Justice Scalia also pointed out (p. 55) that "Like most [constitutional] rights, the right secured by the Second Amendment is not absolute". An "important limitation on the right to carry and bear arms [is, Miller said] that the sorts of weapons protected [by the Second Amendment] were those 'in common use at the time'" (p. 56). The Nordyke case, like Heller, involved a ban on handguns. Maloney, however, had been arrested for possession of a ninchuk. No one can argue with a straight fact that ninchuks were widely used in colonial America. It is thus, unremarkable that the 2nd Circuit considered itself bound by the 1886 case Scalia referenced in Heller."

Churches are like leeches and tapeworms. I don't hate religion; I despise power trips.

The liberals resort to indoctrination, subversion, fear, sleight of hand because their ideas don't work and take away our freedoms so they have to work on people's gullibility.

The dufus population is certainly expanding. Whether they actually contribute anything is another matter altogether.

Reagan wrecked the USSR and improved our lives.

I'll never forget the day his body returned to California from Washington. People heard about the day and time that his body would arrive and many thousands of people spontaneously decided that they wanted to see his last trip to his final resting place. This man was so loved thousands of people packed the overpasses everyplace along the route clogging the roads just to catch a glimpse and say their goodbyes to him. It was such an amazing response from people would just stop what they were doing, leave work, to attend what was supposed to be small motorcade from the airport to the Reagan library unattended by the public.

I don't think the politicians in Washington in including the Obomination understand the American people anymore. These people do not understand or respect the hearts, minds, or pocketbook of the average American. All these elected people do all day long is lie to us and lately the two parties spend all day long calling each other and the civil servants that are supposed to be serving us liars. The Washington circus act has hit bottom.

The USSR was already wrecked.
Bush wrecked Russia and totaled the USA.
I'm not sure Obama can rebuild liberty in the USA or help the Russians do the same in their country.

I'm advocating the freedom of free association and the pursuit of happiness in the use of one's property. They are not bothering or infregining anyone else's peace on adjacent propertys so the city has no basis for the injunction on the pastor's behavior.

If and when the Supreme Court rules the Second Amendment is a “fundamental” right; if it is of a "fundamental" rank, that would very likely lead to its application to state and local government.

My understanding of the liberal agenda is free speech is only allowed when it affirms the lefts beliefs and is not allowed when it doesn't.
When it is inconvenient speech for the left they have no problem limiting that speech by any convenient means. In all cases the left will not listen to reason and they don't want you to hear it either.

The right to peaceably assemble (even on your own property).
The freedom of religion.
Free speech.

Wrong on all counts.

Obama is taking us in the same direction as USSR before its breakup so how in hell is that supposed to be rebuilding? Same old liberal left crap. Go move to Cuba if this is what you think rebuilding is supposed to be.

China and Russia are becoming more capitalistic everyday at the same time we are going more socialistic so you would not want to go there.

Thank you, Cato, for the link.

Pravda has quite a bit of courage and some good articles these days. Wish they'd do two things, though: 1) put their best material in audio form and start an Internet radio network with licensable hourly newscasts to compete with the "Western" corporate media (which could also be put on shortwave); and 2) stop running the sensationalistic/sexy stuff with which they salt their site in an apparent effort to increase ratings and revenue -- it hurts the credibility of the serious pieces.

With every good wish,

will make his opinions the rule of judgment, and approve or condemn the sentiments of others only as they shall square with or differ from his own; that it is time enough for the rightful purposes of civil government, for its officers to interfere when principles break out into overt acts against peace and good order; and finally, that truth is great and will prevail if left to herself, that she is the proper and sufficient antagonist to error, and has nothing to fear from the conflict, unless by human interposition disarmed of her natural weapons, free argument and debate, errors ceasing to be dangerous when it is permitted freely to contradict them:

[Sec. 2] Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That no man shall be compelled to frequent or support any religious worship, place, or ministry whatsoever, nor shall be enforced, restrained, molested, or burdened in his body or goods, nor shall otherwise suffer on account of his religious opinions or belief; but that all men shall be free to profess, and by argument to maintain, their opinion in matters of religion, and that the same shall in no wise diminish enlarge, or affect their civil capacities.

[Sec. 3] And though we well know that this assembly elected by the people for the ordinary purposes of legislation only, have no power to restrain the acts of succeeding assemblies, constituted with powers equal to our own, and that therefore to declare this act to be irrevocable would be of no effect in law; yet we are free to declare, and do declare, that the rights hereby asserted are of the natural rights of mankind, and that if any act shall be hereafter passed to repeal the present, or to narrow its operation, such act shall be an infringement of natural right.

Tell me, Caroline, when are YOU going to join the Army, now that you support the Iraq War? Seriously - you've pointed your lavender illustrated fingernails at others literally hundreds, if not thousands of times.

When are YOU going to step up to the plate?

When are YOU going to show us how it's done?

When you YOU going to practice what you preach?

But you won't - because you're a coward.

You'll just delete this note, AGAIN. And hope things will return to normal where you could call people cowards.

But they won't.

While I still have hope for Obama I think he's let the corporatists play too big of a role. Bush completely screwed up the economy. Now we're going to have to go through a tough period approaching a command economy. Yep, that's what killed the USSR. Our strength was our consumer based market economy but the nation's people are strapped.
They're hard pressed and deep in debt. They've been sold a bill of goods and told it was an investment. All the while the nation's assets have been concentrated into fewer and fewer hands. The consumer of last resort is the government but if it doesn't consume in a way that rebuilds the private consumer market (that means building self sustaining jobs or at least revenue streams for the masses) we're screwed.

> Same old liberal left crap. Go move to Cuba if this > is what you think rebuilding is supposed to be.

I prefer market based systems but I'm not a laissez-faire capitalist.
Well regulated markets aren't over-regulated markets but neither are they under-regulated markets.

Try to peaceably assemble in a Wal Mart parking lot some time..

Municipalities have a legitimate right to regulate traffic and parking in residential areas to protect the rights of all in the neighborhood to peace and parking spaces. There likely would be no problem if the prayer group took public transportation or carpooled so that the entire street was not filled with the group's vehicles.

A friend of mine had five or six cars. He was the only house on that side of the street for the entire block, so he parked them all along his side of the block. The city made him garage, divest or move all but three anyway.

That's private property.

Baloney. The parking in the neighborhood is unregulated. Anybody can park in front of anyone else's house. This is a county street with none of the usual in town street regulations.

This is a red herring anyway. The problem has nothing to do with parking. The county wants the preacher to get a use permit to hold bible study at his house, which is a lot of time and money, and this permit could be denied in any event.

Nice story but it has nothing to do with this one. Maybe you could read about it.

I suppose so, given the power ratings you've quoted.

I neither love him nor hate him. I just find him and his communication style fascinating. He is, without a doubt, a compelling personality.

I imagine it won't be more than a decade or so after his demise that someone writes a good, scholarly biography of the guy. He's a perfect subject, given his influence on different levels of the culture (religion, media, etc.)

On a related, old-SW-preacher note: Harold Camping has been calling the exact day of the end of the world for a couple years now. It's in late May, 2011, if I remember rightly. Last I heard, he was adamant about that date.

Should the old guy live that long, his broadcasts up to that day -- and after, if, God forbid, he got it wrong -- should make fascinating listening.

Brother Camping is even older than the Prophet; but those guys sometimes go on forever.

Well, I won't go as far as to say the word "courage." The word courage nowadays is a very loose word that is thrown around, unless of course the owners/author of the site face retribution for what they printed....which I doubt seeing how it was about the U.S.

I will agree with #2.....too me at least it made the site seem a little less credible, though the article was spot on.

Yeah,, I have to agree with you there both. .#1 and especially # 2... They have too much sensationalistic/sexy stuff mixed in with the

It's a reprint from a lunatic blog. Pravda was a party newspaper during the Soviet era. The official news service was Izvestya [sic] as I recall.

Pravda (Russian: Правда, "Truth") was a leading newspaper of the Soviet Union and an official organ of the Central Committee of the Communist Party between 1912 and 1991.

The Pravda newspaper was started in 1912 in St.Petersburg. It was converted from a weekly Zvezda. It did not arrive in Moscow until 1918. During the Cold War, Pravda was well known in the West for its pronouncements as the official voice of Soviet Communism. (Similarly Izvestia was the official voice of the Soviet government.)

After the paper was closed down in 1991 by decree of President Yeltsin, many of the staff founded a new paper with the same name, which is now a tabloid-style Russian news source. There is an unrelated Internet-based newspaper, Pravda Online (www.Pravda.ru) run by former Pravda newspaper employees. A number of other newspapers have also been called Pravda, most notably Komsomolskaya Pravda, formerly the official newspaper of the now defunct Komsomol and currently the best-selling tabloid in Russia. -wikipedia

The following is what you get with a liberal retard for president.

Fund ACORN to pervert future elections, don't fix banking regulations so the same problems continue in that segment of the economy, destroy the economy by selling its future off to foreign interests, destroy the economy through progressive tax wealth redistribution, destroy the car industry by unconstitutionally taking companies over and selling them off to foreign interests, destroy citizens confidence in the supreme court by appointing activist judges.

Next up developing the Obominations brown shirt youth corps into a political force so we can all be monitored 24/7, destroy health care so the middle class gets poorer care at higher cost, and since he encouraged the Fed to print money to the extent it is worth toilet paper look out for the coming inflation.

Down the road on the path to destroying the USA I'm sure he has some kind of environmental plan, with the accent on "mental" to continue stalling economic recovery, and in some way tax the middle class in multiple ways to achieve some Al Gore inspired lunatic goal.

It's not to late.

You don't need someone's opinion as there is plenty of audio and video on the web of her shooting her mouth off. Sotomayor and the Obominator will not be able to back peddle out of this one.

She is an activist judge who thinks policy should be set from the bench.

She is a racist. She considers "her life experiences" in her judicial decisions so your race will be a factor in her decisions.

She has a terrible judicial record with many overturned decisions and is described as a terror on the bench by the lawyers in her courtroom.

A jurist being considered for the supreme court can't dodge this kind record in the past but hey, we have the (Yes we can) Obominator elevating her so anything is possible.

Noter Dame let the Obomination, a pro abortionist, speak at their last philosophical rape event of the Catholics.

What will the Obominator desecrate next?

Nice language Bob.

I listened this week because I was off work. I listened to Rush's program twice and Roberts one day. Normally I don't listen to any of them.

I'm more of a John and Ken fan.

I hope the same for you. Hopefully, someone will damage or steal your property so you know how it feels.

I think the city or county inspectors should come around to find out just what you have or are doing that might be out of compliance and harass the hell out of you. Based on your posting style and content you MUST be doing something wrong and I think you should be persecuted to the full extent of the law for whatever that is in the very thick regulation books. I would be more than happy to file a complaint against you to start the ball rolling so just let me know.

I reckon there are some Sailboats sailing around on the Ross Barnett
Resevoir right now.That is where Jackson gets it's drinking water.Them Alligators over there make that water taste real good.Just ask them people over there having a few drinks at them drinking establishments.Some people call the Reservoir the Rez.I guess they think that's cute.

I could never afford one of those.

Neither could I! But, you and I were part owners, and for a time I worked for you!
It was a pleasure, and I thank you for the opportunity to serve you.

The Obominator and Michelle just visited NYC. I hope they got a better picture of Air Force One over the city this time. I wonder how many times they buzzed the city on this visit? I hear the Obominator remarked how empty the airport looked when they finally landed.

<http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0509/23122.html>

"The sky is clear and blue here, same weather as in Washington. No traffic on West Street as NYPD had cleared the road of panicked people streaming out of skyscrapers. Some trapped observers nervously watched for Marine One from a pier about 100 yards north. I could see ten or more NYPD motor jocks, a bunch of cruisers and a rather large RV-style van, perhaps a mobile command center trying to control the masses of screaming people trying to exit the city."

I wouldn't want to be within 300 yards of Boy Barry as one might get caught in a crossfire hurricane.
